EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

IT looks as if Barclay Peak is guilty.

EUROPEAN war clouds are not near so numerous as they used to be.

SALISBURY, England's Premier, is weary of public life. Perhaps Salisbury understands the drift of popular sentiment.

THE busy B's of Europe at this time are Boulanger and Bismarck. They should be hived in the interest of peace and harmony.

CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG says that an American girl can prepare herself for a professional teacher in this country as well as in Europe.

George William Curtis says that if it be unwomanly for a woman to hold office it is unwomanly for Queen Victoria to be queen of England.

THE French statesmen experience disperate difficulty to form a cabinet. Without doubt a dozen of them could be found on this side of the water and we can sell one to France for a suitable consideration.

ON the 8th of June Findlay, Ohio, will celebrate the first application of natural gas to mechanic arts in that State. It would be well if, by the 8th of June, Bellefonte could have an organization effected to search for natural gas.

THE particulars of the burning of the Opera Comique in Paris furnish one of the most startling horrors on record. It is a crime to construct any building, in which large audiences are expected to gather, without adequate means of exit.

Two noted newspaper correspondents have recently died. They were Mr. Ramsdell and Ben Perley Poore. Next to George Alfred Townsend, they were perhaps the most prominent in the country and their knowledge of men and politics was practically unlimited.

IT IS said that the amount of money in circulation at the present time in the hanes of the people, deducting that held by the U. S. Treasury and the banks is about $900,000,000, or $16.25 to every man, woman and child in the country. At this rate most people have not their share.

THE appearance of what is called the "Star of Bethlehem" is discussed every year, but it seems to be a very uncertain and mysterious celestial object. The astronomers don't appear to know whether they have seen that identical star or not, or whether it really exists at present. Conjecture in regard to it s useless.

WE notice that on Monday, Father Keller, who was recently released from prison, was presented with an address at Youghal by the local branch of the National League. In his reply he said that he would rather be in a cell in Kilmainham jail, great as was his horror of imprisonment, than witness the recent atrocious evictions on the Ponsonby estates.

VICIOUS and immoral literature must go. The Governor has signed the bill and the local society organized for the enforcement of the law will take the matter in hand practically without delay. The indecent show pictures so disgustingly displayed of late on our public thoroughfares should receive early attention, as well as the illustrated sporting papers and yellow-covered literature.

THE American Indian, Red Shirt, visited what is known as the Savage Club, in London, on Saturday, in full war paint. There were also present Fly Above, Little Bull, Colonel Cody, Mr. Burke, Broncho Bill and Wilson Barrett. A pipe of peace was smoked. Red Shirt promised to send the historical calumet to the Club on his return to American. He alluded to the members of the Savage Club as "brothers," and returned thanks for receiving the warm hand of friendship. Col. Cody also made a brief address, speaking of the kindness with which he and his companions had been received everywhere since their arrival in England.

The South and its Interests.

Wide attention has naturally been drawn to the series of articles on the South contributed to the Philadelphia Press by an observant and intelligent staff correspondent. They show what the South is doing with its own and Northern capital and energy to develop its great natural resources and get those advantages which it is entitled to have from them. These letters cover many sections and tell the same story of progress, development and thrift for each. The influence of awakened activity in one place is felt elsewhere, and while all states have not equal resources, each state has been moved to search out what it has and get them employed. This is not new, particularly to-day: it has been in progress for several years, but the extent of it has been very little understood in other portions of the country.

It is not to the discredit of the South that much of this has been done and is now being done with Northern capital and enterprise. The opportunities offered in the Southern states at the close of the war were apparent, and they were improved as soon as the rough edge of prejudice had worn down, and the people of the South began to appreciate the importance of inviting money and men from elsewhere. The result is of interest to the whole country. To enrich the South and make it prosperous is to add so much to the common wealth of the country. The opening of coal mines, the introduction of iron manufacture, the erection of cotton mills need produce no apprehension for similar industries in other sections, nor will they be likely to do so. The more such enterprises are undertaken, the more will be the encouragement given.

But with all this development and the investment of large capital in manufactures the people of the South will need to learn one thing. They can not much longer afford to be misrepresented in Congress by Free-trade theorists. The whole substantial business cause of the South is being more or less injured by Free-trade congressmen from that section. They are living on the traditions of the Calhoun days when there was nothing in the South to protect, and they have not generally kept up, as the people themselves have, with the purposes and demands of the present time. The South has grown in these later years in spite of them and their wrong ideas; it has progressed and prospered under existing Republican tariff law, and it can doubtless continue to do so. The people owe it to themselves, however, to encourage their own prosperity by removing as much as possible the constant menace of the partially solid Free-trade delegations from the Southern States.

As liberal as the North has been with its capital in the South, who can say how much more liberal it would have been had the attitude of Southern congressmen been different? Assurance of protection for investments is undeniably necessary, but there would be no such assurance if the methods of Carlisle and the Southern statesmen who act with him should prevail. To the people of the South, who are just fairly awakening to their own opportunities, this is not alone a question of inviting and protecting investment from abroad; it is to them a question of their own protection and the encouragement of their own prosperity. They can not always safely make the mistake they are now repeating every time they elect a representative in Congress or vote for a president of the United States. It is and must be to them a matter of business to which their eyes will, sooner or later, be opened.

State Taxation.

The burden of direct county taxation should hereafter be materially lightened by the operations of the new general revenue bill, since the sums returned by the State as half of the amount of tax collected upon money at interest, will be quite considerable and the provisions for a full and fair assessment and collection of the tax are sharp and positive. The law provides that, "all mortgages, all moneys owing to solvent debtors, whether by promissory note or penal or single bill, bond or judgment, except bonds accompanying mortgages, all articles of agreement and accounts bearing interest, except book accounts, saving bank deposits and ordinary bank deposits, liable to be withdrawn by check without notice; all public or municipal loans whatever, except loans of the State or United States; all bank loans and bank stock of any bank, corporation, association, company, or limited partnership created under the laws of the United States or of this or any other State or government, including car trust securities and loans secured by bonds or any other form of certificate or evidence of indebtedness, except shares of stock in corporations or limited partnerships liable to a corporation taxation under the thirty-fourth section of this act; all moneys loaned or invested in other States, territories and countries and all other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of the State, or annuities over two hundred dollars except those granted by the Commonwealth or the United States; all stages, omnibuses, hacks, cabs and other vehicles used for transporting passengers for hire, and not owned by corporations paying a corporation tax, shall pay for State purposes a tax of three mills on the dollar" As has already here been noted the new law exempts all household furniture, gold and silver plate, watches and pleasure carriages. The exemption also includes building and loan associations, the capital stock of manufacturing corporations or limited partnerships, actually employed in the state, and banks and saving institutions which elect to pay a state tax of six miles on the actual value of the shares.

Tragedy in Georgia.

A may festival which ended in a tragedy occurred among the colored people, at a place named Rosedale, near Atlanta, Ga., on Friday. There were several special festivities connected with the occasion. In the marksmanship contests Lieutenant Spriggs and a mulatto barber of Gainesville, named Rogers, were the most successful contestants. The barber won the prize and was privileged to crown the dusky queen whom he should choose. He selected Julia Milling, his rival's sweetheart. Jealousy burned in the breast of the Lieutenant. He retired from the festive group and planned the most murderous revenge. Just as the maiden was being crowned queen of the May a rifle report rang on the air, a bullet sped from a neighboring copse, pierced the heart of the maiden just where a bouquet was pinned and she fell to the platform a corpse. The murderer (Lieutenant Spriggs) leaped on his horse and fled and a score of the men composing the party followed in pursuit. Monday morning, as we write this, he has not been overtaken, but as soon as he is found summary punishment will doubtless be visited on him —and his crime deserves it.

Memorial Day.

No more patriotic duty could devolve upon grateful humanity than that which Memorial day annually brings. To be sure, we might decorate the soldiers' graves without having a special day for that purpose. Our feelings of gratitude might lead us to show them that remembrance without any unanimity of action. But in no other way could it be so generally and impressively performed or with such potent effect for good on the people. Its general observance as at present makes it almost national and attracts the attention of all to the act. It makes it more truly a national homage of love and affection. The beautiful and reverent significance of the ceremonies must leave its impress on the mind, softening and refining it. What is there more appropriate than the Grand Army ritual? The noble sentiments, beautiful flowers, words of tender remembrance are all expressive of the proper feelings of the human heart on such an occasion. While we are not in favor of making the day like the Sabbath in its exclusion of all legitimate pleasure, we certainly do enjoin the most general and hearty participation in the special exercises to which the day is devoted. It should be to us a privilege as well as a duty.

THE arrangement between England and Turkey provides that the British troops shall evacuate Egypt three years hence, and that if internal troubles arise after that time, the country will be re-occupied by either Turkish or British forces, or by both jointly, but in no case will any other power be allowed to intervene. The Egyptian petitioners for a French army saved themselves the trouble of making their prayer. England was never known to calmly surrender territory to which she has so good a claim as to Egypt. The French lost their foot-hold when they withdrew just before the bombardment of Alexandria, and they will not be allowed again to share in the management of Egyptian affairs.

IN the consolidation of internal revenue districts recently ordered, which will reduce the number of districts in the country at large by twenty-two, Pennsylvania loses two. The Pittsburg and the Erie districts are abolished, and the business is consolidated with the Lancaster and Allegheny districts chiefly. The change has aroused great indignation on the part of the displaced collectors, and this is parti cularly the case with Collector Dowlin of Pittsburg, who will surrender his office to Collector Bigler, of the Twenty-third District. That official will move over to Pittsburg and from there manage the most of the revenue business for the Western part of the State. This deprives Congressman Scott and Ex-Congressman Boyle of about all the patronage they had, and there are a great many Democrats wearing mourning. It will be an advantage to the country, however.—Philadelphia Press.

The National Drill.

Writing from Washington, D. C., under date May 30, a correspondent thus describes the closing scenes of the National Drill:

'Ere this letter reaches you the National Drill will be a thing of the past. The competitive drills closed on Saturday, but the Encampment does not break up until this evening, and no one but the judges knows as yet who will bear away the trophies, except in one instance, where a private of the San Antonio Rifles won the first prize given to individual contestants of the infantry drill.

The judges of the Drill, who are experienced army officers selected by General Sheridan, at the request of the managing committee, on account of their fitness for the task, made up their findings yesterday and handed them over to the Drill committee in sealed envelops. This morning they were given to General Sheridan, who will open them at three o'clock this afternoon on a stand in the Drill ground in presence of all the troops, and present them to the successful competitors.

Of course there will be some disappointments, but the judges have had a very difficult and delicate duty to perform. The militia organizations which participated in this competition are among the best in the country, and where many are excellent the task of deciding between them is ver hard. Where one was perfect and another was defective, and vice versa. Of one thing the soldiers may be quite certain, and that is that the judes will not rate them as did the audience always, for errors of the manual, which were invisible from the grand stand, were from the judges' standpoint, gross mistakes, and their decisions will have to be accepted without question.

In the gossip of the camp the prizes have been distributed among the Toledo Cadets, the Lomax Rifles, of Mobile, the two San Antonio companies, the St. Paul companies, the Muscatine Rifles, of Iowa, the Louisana Rifles, the Vicksburg Southrons, and two Washington companies. Each has warm partisan admirers, who expect one of the higher infantry prizes for their favorite organization, and one hears extoled the merit of this company and criticism of the performances of all the others on every hand. Undoubtedly there were technical faults in the maneuvers of the most accomplished companies which were not discernable to the public, but as I mentioned before, no one knows, at this writing, the judges' decisions, and as you will know the result, probably, before you read this letter, any forecast of the awards would be useless.

Uncle Sam's Crooked Accounts.

Imports and exports for twelve months ending April, 1887, are as follows: Exports of merchandise, free on board, valued at $734,994,033. Imports of merchandise of crooked values $679,509,656. In this item of imports foreign transportation, etc., is not included. The New York "Financial and Commercial Chronicle" estimates the excluded charges and undervaluation at $120,000,000. The outgoing gold adverse trade balance, $64,515,623.

By a "tariff for revenue only" we are losing the requisites of making a flexible currency of gold and silver. The sentence on our silver dollars, "In God we trust." should be crowned with an extra session of Congress to legislate for the protection of gold—the people's money. The tin plate will come largely into play towards protecting our gold by an increase of tariff. J. W.

IT seems probable now that the history of one of the most remarkable criminal cases which has been placed on record in Pennsylvania for many years will be terminated in August next by the hanging of Samuel Johnson for the murder of John Sharpless. Every effort seems to have been made to secure the true culprit, and no opportunity has been allowed to pass by unemployed to secure the freedom of the convict. Viewed from a legal standpoint Johnson is the guilty man, and there seems to be no good ground for the belief that law and justice are at variance in this case. It is therefore a satisfaction to know that the severe punishment of the law is likely to be inflicted in this case. The question of the nature of the punishment does not enter into the case as thus viewed. If capital punishment is wrong other provision for such criminals should be made by law, but such a crime as was the murder of John Sharpless demands that punishment shall be inflicted to the fullest extent provided. The safety of the community is only thus to be protected.

A Brave Woman.

Sister Marie Theresa, a French nun, who has lately been decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor for forty years' service in the army ambulances, seems to be not only a brave but a merry woman. During a time of hard fighting in Tonquin, a bomb fell into an ambulance full of wounded men. Sister Theresa seized the bomb and carried it to a distance. When she set it down it exploded, but, luckily, not till she had time to throw herself flat on the ground. Her assistants rushed up in terror, and found her unconscious and covered with blood. When she regained her senses she uttered her obstomary phrase, "It's only a joke," an expression which has since become her nickname. At another time she was tending a wounded man, when she was struck by a passing splinter from a charge of metraille; but her quiet observation was merely, as usual, "It's only a joke." At the ceremony of the decoration, none of the customary formalities were omitted. The general who conferred the title chevaliere on the brave nun touched her with his sword on both her shoulders, and finally brushed her cheek with his white mustaches.

EDITOR WILLIAM O'BRIEN, speaking to a crowded house in Boston, said: "American sympathy is no new thing to Ireland, for it has been the day star of our hopes in many a dark hour. I know no living force that has had such a magical effect as American opinion in nerving the great heart of William Ewart Gladstone and our own matchless leader, Charles Stewart Parnell. God bless and guard them both! Why do I say that American opinion is of so much weight? Because America is the land of the future, the land of the free, and any cause that commends itself to the hearts and sympathies of sixty millions of American freemen—that cause can no more fail than the pro-slavery mob, to which our chairman just alluded, could to-day fasten the links upon the slaves whom America set free."

A REMARKABLE exhibit has been made in the annual report of the Illinois Central Railroad, showing cost of locomotive service for each year of the past thirty years. The cost per mile has fallen from 26.52 cents in 1847 to 13.93 cents in 1886. This reduction has been affected wholly by inventions and improvements in machinery. But the figures show that the progress of invention has been even more remarkable than these figures imply, because the wages of engineers and firemen have risen in the same period from 4.51 cents to 5.52 cents per mile run. In 1857 the engineers and firemen received as wages 17 per cent. of the cost of locomotive service. In 1886 they receive 39 per cent. of the total cost.

SENATOR STEWART, of Nevada, says that instead of cutting off the railroad passes of Senators and Representatives, as has been done by the Inter-State Commerce law, he would give them all passes and compell each man to travel at least 5,000 miles a year, in order to have them learn something about all parts of the country for which they have to legislate.

—George G. Heeter, of Mifflinburg, was married to Alice A. Foote of the same place, at the Bush House, at 2 o'clock on Tuesday, Rev. D. S. Monroe, D.D., officiating. The bride is the daughter of Geo. W. Foote, editor of the Mifflinburg Times. She is pretty and accomplished. The bride and groom have the best wishes of ye reporter, who witnessed the ceremony.

Poetry.

HOME.

The winds that blow from home to me,
How sweet their breath!—they kiss my cheek,
And over life's tempestuous sea,
What tender words of love they speak!

A happy home! where dear ones dwell,
Your benedictions on the air
Come, with the night-wind's mystic swell,
Surcharged with love, perfumed by prayer.

Not Persian rose, nor odors rare
From Ceylon's groves, nor far Cathay,
Can with home's violet compare,
Nor sweet breath from its hawthorn spray.

E'en now upon the winds that come
From where love's compass seeks the West,
I seem to hear the wild bees hum,
The chirp of birdlings in the nest;

I see the swallows dart and play,
I hear the mockingbird's glad strain;
If I could fly, ah, soon, like they,
I'd come to thee, dear home, again!

For there are never fairer skies,
Nor flowers so sweet, where'er we roam,
Nor readier hands, nor brighter eyes,
Nor warmer hearts than those at home.

AN ORPHAN BORN.

I am a lone, unfathered chick,
Of artificial batching,
A pilgrim in a desert wild,
By happier mothered chicks reviled,
From all relationship exiled,
To do my own lone hatching.

Fair Science smiled upon my birth
One raw and gusty morning;
And now the sounds of barnyard mirth
To lonely me have little worth;
I am alone in all the earth—
An orphan without borning.

Seek I my mother? I would find
A heartless personator;
A thing brass hided, man-designed,
With steampipe arteries intermined
And pulseless cotton batting lined—
A patent incubator.

It wearies me to think, you see—
Death would be better, rather—
Should children e'er be born to me,
By fate's most pitiless decrees
My little ones, alas, would be
With never a grandfather.

And when to earth I bid adieu
To seek a greater,
I will not do as others do,
Who go to join the ancestral crew,
For I will just be gathered to
My incubator.

THE POOR MAN'S SHEAF.

He saw the wheat fields waiting
All golden in the sun,
And strong and stalwart reapers
Went by him one by one.
"O, could I reap in harvest!"
His heart made bitter cry,
"I can do nothing, nothing,
So weak, alas, am I."

At eve a fainting traveler
Sank down beside his door,
A cup of cool sweet water
To quench his thirst he bore.
And, when refreshed and strengthened,
The traveler went his way,
Upon the poor man's threshold
A golden wheat sheaf lay.

When came the Lord of harvest,
He cried: "Oh, Master kind,
One sheaf I have to offer,
But that I did not bind;
I gave a cup of water,
To one athirst, and he
Left at my door in going,
This sheaf I offer Thee."

Then said the Master softly:
"Well pleased with this am I;
One of my angels left it
With thee as he passed by.
Thou mayst not join the reapers
Upon the harvest plain,
But he who helps a brother
Binds sheaves of richer grain."

Our Story Teller.

THE CRAZY QUILT.

"Dear me! there is baby waking again, and I have just begun the most difficult pattern for my quilt. Jakey, will you please quiet the child?"

Mr. Jacob Axworth put down his comb and brush, and turned impatiently away from the dressing case.

"Dot is sleeping soundly," he crossly announced, as he bent over a dainty bassinet.

"But I am sure she will wake directly," chirruped the apprehensive voice from an adjoining room, where a pretty young woman was sitting with a gorgeous crazy quilt beneath her busy hands. "And I do so much want to finish my quilt. I do wish, Jakey, that you would stay at home and mind baby a bit."

"It strikes me I shall be compelled to stay home altogether unless I buy an entire new outfit," the young husband suddenly vociferated, as he made a bewildering litter of the dusty and buttonless contents of wardrobe and drawers. "My best coat is nearly without buttons and my shirts ditto. And will you be good enough to inform me, Mrs. Axworth, in what unaccountable place you have deposited my blue cravat and canary silk handkerchief?"

"Dear me, why, Jakey," the girlish wife blithely responded, "the blue satin was a bit soiled, you know, and I used the cravat for the anchor figure in my quilt and the frayed canary handkerchief made an exquisite fan-pattern with feather-stitch in silver thread. When I shall have finished the lovely center star, my crazy quilt will have ninety thousand—"

It strikes me, Mrs. Axworth, he savagely interrupted, "that your quilt will not be the only crazy thing about this establishment; I already am afraid to guarantee my sanity, Mrs. Axworth—which may not seem wonderful if you will condescend to my ninety thousand miseries since you have begun that delectable monument of feminine absurdity. Since that quintessence of the preposterous was begun, Mrs. Axworth, there has been nothing in the house but disorder, cold meat, and excuses. And here's my diamond pin actually decorating Dot's bib, upon my word, madam, I am inclined to change my residence."

Pretty Mrs. Axworth dropped her crazy quilt, and her dimpled face slightly whitened; she was startled and amazed by the unfamiliar vehemence of a husband who had ever been forbearing and almost weakly, indulgent.

"Dear me! Jakey," she ejaculated in dismay. "I am sure I don't know how baby Dot ever managed to get your diamond pin; and really, I did not mean to be so careless about your buttons; but I have been so busy—about—the—quilt," she faltered, with an uncomfortable sensation that her only apology would seem ridiculously malapropos at this crisis.

"You need not remind me of that, Letitia," he answered with a more serious inflection in his sarcastic tones. "I am profoundly aware that you have been quite too occupied to care for your uninteresting domestic duties, or any such insignificant matter as my comfort. But finish your quilt, my dear; by all means, finish your precious crazy quilt. I should be afraid to guarantee my return until the thing is done and stowed away from sight."

And with that not particular cordial assurance he adjusted an ancient black cravat, picked up his rumpled gloves and stalked out of the house, leaving pretty Mrs. Letitia feeling more astonished than she had ever felt before in all her brief wedded life.

"I should never have believed that he could be so angry, and he never before went away without kissing baby Dot," she sighed, as two big ruefnl tears dripped upon the gorgeous quilt, that miracle of her decorative ingenuities which her aggrieved spouse had declined to appreciate.

"And I was so proud of it," she presently said to a caller, an elderly lady, with merry dark eyes, tiny iron-gray curls, and a severely plain dark dress. "It is a rather showy thing," the lady said; "but yet the coarsest blanket would be just as comfortable."

"That is the opinion Jakey has I suppose," the girlish wife plaintively returned.

"O, I dare say, you have allowed him to feel rather neglected," the other remarked in her amiable and cheery tones.

"He was never grumbling and cross before about anything," Mrs. Axworth said, piteously, "and I am sure I did not mean to be neglectful—he ought to know that."

"We—none of us like to feel that our comfort is a secondary consideration to them we love best," the lady said; "and when we are too much slighted, Letitia, we are apt to become remiss ourselves," she added, so soberly and significansly, that the dimpled pretty face before her blushed crimson.

"Jakey is not becoming remiss; you did not think that?" Mrs. Axworth queried, the crimson on her cheeks growing hotter, a resentful flash beneath her misty eyes.

"I am certain he does not wish to be remiss," the other said, with a curiously roguish twinkle in her kindly, merry eyes. "And I dare say you have been too occupied with the showy quilt to notice anything that may be construed as a slight. And, of course, you are aware that Mr. Axworth devotes a great deal of his time to Laura Doone."

"I am not aware of nothing of the kind," Mrs. Axworth said, with paling lips and kindling eyes. "I have no knowledge whatever of any such person."

"Indeed!" the other commented. "And he takes her driving often and visits her every evening; and he has presented her with quite a magnificent birthday gift."

Mrs. Axworth tossed aside her crazy quilt and arose from her low rocker.

"You might have spared yourself, Aunt Virginia, the repetition of such doubtful gossip," she said, with dignity. "I refuse to listen to any insinuations against my husband; and I shall never believe any wrong of him."

"But if you will permit me to explain," with a smile of mischief and of unqualified approval.

"I want no palliative explanation from anybody who would traduce my husband," interrupted the disturbed wife, nobly loyal, despite the untidy house, the cold meats, the neglected buttons, and all the smally folly of the luckless crazy quilt. "And they who credit ill of him can no longer remain my friends."

And then, before her companion could utter a syllable, she turned and indignantly left the room.

Despite her noble indignation her heart was sore and weak, and once she flung herself on her knees beside the dainty bassinet and wept bitterly.

In vain baby Dot cooed and whimpered and clinched her chubby fingers in the loose dark locks about the bowed head; the pretty wife was conscious of nothing but the unfamiliar trouble that seemed so keen and cruel.

When at length she had controlled her tears; she glanced wistfully toward the dusty clock on the untidy mantel.

"How late it is," she murmumed. "Perhaps because he felt neglected he has indeed become remiss himself; or, perhaps, he may never come. Perhaps, he no longer loves us—poor baby Dot and me—and he may really be with her—that strange woman whom he has favored with magnificent gifts and frequent drives and daily visits."

Her compunctions or misgivings embittered by a vague and half incredulous jealousy, came well-nigh maddening her, as the swift moments elapsed, and yet he did not come. She could only wander in a vigil of unrest from to room, now wildly peering out into the black night, or again turning with a shudder from the dusk and litter that everywhere vexed her quickened sight, and ever listening to the dreary, dreary ticking of the clock.

And so the hours wore on. And just as the dawn began to lighten against the windows, there was the click of a latchkey, the sound of cautious footsteps, and then her husband almost noiselessly entered the room.

He startled as he beheld her—a disconsolate vision, in the familiar torn and smirched wrapper, her bright eyes swollen and dimmed by many tears, her dark locks in disorder about her pretty face that was pitifully white and haggard.

"They wanted me to stay," he hurriedly said, in deprecatory accents, and with the old gentle tenderness. "Laura is ill—"

"Who is Laura?" she sharply demanded, as a fierce pang wrenched her sore heart.

For an instant he stared a little, and then an exceedingly comprehensive look succeeded the honest surprise of his countenance.

"Why, she is my niece?" he smiled, "Little Laura Doone Axworth. Possibly I may not have mentioned that my brother and his family are in the city; but latterly my love, you have been so busy with your crazy quilt that you have no time to listen to anything.

"And you have been driving with her, you have given her a magnificent birthday gift?" she questioned, with an inflection of unutterable relief in her choking voice.

"Why, yes," he declared, cheerfully; "I knew you would not mind; you were so eager to finish your quilt, you know, Letitia, that I had a notion you were glad to have me away. A fellow dislikes to dally about a house where he is only a bother and a hindrance. But, bless me, about what are you crying?"

"I am sorry about it all—about the buttons and all that," Mrs. Letitia sobbed, her arms about his neck, her head against his heart. "And I was beginning to fear that I had neglected you and everything until you might not wish to come home again. And I thought Laura Doone was some strange woman for whom you cared."

"And I," he returned, in playful consternation—"I shall begin to fear that your crazy quilt has unsettled your senses. And it strikes me that somebody has willfully misrepresented my niece, who is still a little miss in pinafores. And I could never care for any woman but you, although, my love, you were rather trying when you were occupied with that decorative abomination of ninety thousand discomforts."

"It will be the cause of no more of discomfort to you, Jakey," the pretty wife avowed with her most wifely smile.

She was likely never to ignore the lesson she had learned in that bitter vigil when she had waited and watched for the coming of one whose love she feared she had alienated by her inattention to the homelier duties of her household.

"Dear, sagacious Aunt Virginia knew I needed a stern lesson," she used to think, "and that is why she fabricated the clever comedy about little Laura Doone.

A Story of Washington Etiquette.

The late ex-Gov. Morgan, of New York, told this good story on himself: "He had been Governor of New York, and, of course, familiar with public and social life in Albany and elsewhere; but when he became Senator the question of precedence was entirely new to him. He gave a dinner at which Seward was present as Secretary of State, as well as Sir Frederick Bruce, the British Minister, and Mr. Tassara, the Spanish Envoy. Tassara was the senior, or dean, as it is called, of the Diplomatic Corps, having served longest at Washington; and by the rules estat lished at the Congress of Vienna the question of precedence is settled among diplomatists according to the seniority of their service at any particular court or capital. Morgan knew nothing of this rule, and when dinner was announced he asked Sir Frederick Bruce to take out Mrs. Morgan. 'But I can't do that,' said Sir Frederick, 'it is Tassara's right. He is the dean.' 'Pshaw! exclaimed the Governor, 'I don't care who is dean, England is a greater country than Spain and you ought to go before a Spaniard.' Bruce, in his dilemma, appealed to Seward, and Seward went up to Morgan. 'My dear Governor, you must let Tassara take out Mrs. Morgan, or he will write to his Government and the whole State department will be in trouble.' In order to avoid an international rupture the Governor yielded, and the diplomatic rules were observed."

He Went Back.

He was a little fellow not over twelve years old, and he was sitting behind a box at the Omaha depot the other morning softly crying and looking very dirty and forlorn.

"What's the matter?" we asked.

"Hain't nothin' the matter," he said defiantly, sitting up straight, hastily brushing away his tears and pushing back his jacket a little so as to display the handle of an old revolver in his pocket. Then he looked off across the river at the strange buildings and lost his bravery, and buried his head again and sobbed through his tears:

"Oh mister, I've been a runnin' away an' I want 'o go home."

"What made you run away?"

"I thought it would be nice, but it hain't no it hain't," and he rested his face in his hands and looked the picture of woe. "Dick Dagger had a heap o' fun, but I hain't had a bit.

"Who was Dick Dagger?"

"Didn't you ever hear o' him. He was the boy scout of the Rockies, an' I wanted to be like him. There hain't Indians what'll hurt a feller round here, is there?"

"No."

"I wouldn't shoot 'em if there was Dick shot 'em, but I don't want to (.) I want to get back home, but mebby I never will again," and once more his tears flowed.

"Where did you live?"

"Oh, I lived down in Marion, in Illinois, and it just about killed me riding in that old freight car, an' I hurt my knee, an' I'm cold and hain't had no breakfast, nor supper, neither. I wish I'd never heard of Dick—I don't see how he got along so well—and if I ever get home again and see my—my—ma" but the thought of his mother was too much for him.

"I don't want to hurt Indians or bears or nothin', nor rescue no maidens an' I'm tired of that old thing!" and he pulled a rusty revolver out of his pocket that hadn't been fired for ten years. "Please, mister, get me something to eat, an' I'll work all day for you," and he looked up pitifully and straightened his little cap on his curly head.

We took him along and he ate three or four meals in one, but even after that he didn't say a word about exterminating the Indian. The next day a grave looking father arrived looking for a very homesick boy, and they went back together. So the Government lost another scout, but an anxious mother got back a boy who will never run away again.

A Slight Confusion.

"Boss, ize a bit confused 'bout suthin'," said one of the negro whitewashers at the market to Detective Webb the other day.

"Well, what is it?"

"What does per annum mean?"

"Per year, of course."

"A hull y'ar?"

"Yes."

"Can't be no mistake?"

"No, sir."

"If I borry $2 of Abrahan Jonhsing an' agree to pay 20 per cent. per annum, dat means 20 cents a y'ar, does it?"

"It does."

"Hu! Dar's gwine to be de biggest row in Kaintucky to-night you eber hearn tell of."

"About what?"

"About dat per annum. I borryed $2 of de pusson menshnned at 20 per cent. per annum, an' fo' de las' fo'teen months he's bin collect'n 20 cents a week as reg'lar as a clock. Stuck right to it, he did, dat per annum meant ebery Saturday night. Lawd! but when I gits dese yer paws on him, won't per annum take a flop!"

The Latest Case of Libel.

New York Tidbits.

Stranger—Are you the editor of the Bugler?

Editor—Yes, sir.

Stranger—Well, my name is Dinglye, and if you don't retract what you said about my domestic affairs I'll sue you for libel.

Editor—But, my dear sir, the Bugler only condradicted the reports started by the venomous sheet across the way You have evidently made a mistake. We said that you were living in peace and harmony with your wife. There's no libel about that, is there?

Stranger—Yes, sir, there is. It implies that I haven't a spark of courage or manhood about me. And when I bring my wife into court, the jury will see it in just that light, too.

An Athlete's Advice to Amateurs.

A professional athlete advises amateurs not to impose upon the stomach by the aid of medicines. Exercise should be avoided early in the morning before breakfast on an empty stomach. The air is very unwholesome early in the morning, and until the sun has purified it, to breath it freely is injurious. Malarial and chest diseases are apt to be taken. People who are not professional athletes cannot stand the fatigue of exercise before breakfast, and it even weakens the regular professional ones who are ignerant. The system is weaker when a person rises than at any other time during the day. The proper way is to rise an hour or so after the sun is up, take a light breakfast, and after the meal has thoroughly digested take the exercise.

"Whiskers! Why Ethel, he has such lovely muttonchops that it makes one hungry to look at them."

Customer—Why, man alive, my suit was ordered three weeks ago, and the strike was only ordered yesterday! You said you'd have it last Friday.

Tailor (triumphantly)—Yes; but you see the strike has set us back ten days."

A Paralyzed Farmer.

A Detroit butcher named Joe Willets was up in Mecosta county a few days ago to see some relatives. Joe is built after the old style architecture—one story and a basement—and any man who picks him up for a consumptive is bound to feel sad over the mistake. While out riding one day with a friend he came across a farmer who was trying to "yank" a stump out of the ground with a yoke of feeble looking steers. The stump had begun to "give," but the steers strained and twisted and pulled and couln't budge it another inch.

"What are you trying to do?" asked Joe as he stopped his horse.

"Trying to pull out this stump, sir," was the reply.

"And the steers can't do it?"

"No, nor any other yoke in these parts. I'll take a pound of gunpowder to lift that stump."

"Shoo! now, but take off your cattle. I'm something on the pull myself."

"You! Say, do I look like a fool? You can drive on, stranger."

But Joe jumped down, slipped the chain off the yoke, drove the steers to one side, and then walked over to the stump and said:

"Sometimes the dirt flies over half an acre of ground. Better shade your eyes."

With that he spit on his hands, clasped his arms around the stump, and without a bulge of his eyes he lifted the whole thing out of the earth and flung it outside with the remark:

"Shouldn't like any better fun than to pull those steers backwards over the fence, but we must be going now. So 'long old man."

And he climbed in and drove off. At a bend in the road half a mile away they looked back. The farmer stood there, mouth open and eyes as big as Bermuda onions, and when they waved their hats at him he never moved a hair. He couldn't. He was paralyzed.

Applicant—Certainly; that's where I was shot.

A Vessel Missing.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—A special from Port Townsend. Washington Territorry, says: "The United States revenue cutter Oliver Walcott has returned from a four days' cruise along the west coast of Vancouver Island in search of news concerning the ship St. Stephens, which sailed from here March 29 loaded with 2,200 tons of coal from Seattle for San Francisco. The cutter arrived in Klayuquoit Sound last Sunday night. Father McCoy, a Catholic missionary, who recently reported that Indians had found a trunk and other articles belonging to the ship, resides here and his services were secured. He immediately dispatched several parties of Indians to Cape Cook and other Indian villages in quest of more definite information concerning the wreck.

The party sent to Cape Cook returned on Monday and reported that the St. Stephens had come ashore there during a heavy storm which had prevailed at that point on April 9. The cutter departed for Klavuquoit Harbor, a few miles south of Cape Cook, where an Indian village was found, and personal letters, suits, three boats, the afterhouse, pilothouse, compass, ships' stores and oil paintings belonging to the captain's daughter, which had washed ashore on April 10, the Indians reported. One Whitehall boat, which was carried on the afterhouse, was being used by the Indians, it having come ashore uninjured. The other two boats appeared to have been crushed by the waves against the sides of the vessel when the crew were endeavoring to leave the ship.

A shoal nearly 20 miles long and 3 miles from the shore, which forms a dangerous reef, exists directly in front of this sound, which the sea barely covers at ebb tide. It was on this reef that the St. Stephens was wrecked during a heavy southwesterly gale. The theory advanced by Captains Glover and Bryant is that the vessel was dismated soon after the bark Enrock Talbot observed her in distress off Cape Beale, and as strong ocean currents exist along this coast the ship was carried a distance of 100 miles to Cape Cook, where she stranded.

The Paris Horror.

PARIS, May 27.—The examination of the ruins of the opera comique for the remains of the victims continues vigorously. Twenty bodies have been found in the dining room. These victims had all met their death by suffocation. The firemen saw other bodies, but were unable to reach them. It is believed that there are 150 more bodies in the ruins.

Two compositors of the Lanterne, who escaped from the burning theatre, says that the scenery was fully on fire in five minutes and in a quarter of an hour the whole interior of the theatre was ablaze The greater part of the public, they think, succeeded in escaping by the staircase, but that the smoke quickly suffocated those in the upper part of the house who were unable to get out. On their way out they passed over bodies at every step. These were mostly of women who had fainted or who had been trampled upon by the crowd. The two men succeeded in rescuing ten women, but were themselves soon driven out by the suffocating smoke.

The electric light had already been introduced in the theatre, and ina few more nights the gas would have been altogether superseded.

War Prices.

An old fashioned chap who keeps a dingy grocery in Cleveland had about 300 pounds of maple sugar on hand in April, and one morning a drummer, who had been posted by the boys, entered the store and said—

"See here. I am a man who goes straight to business. I'll give you forty cents a pound for that maple sugar."

"Forty cents?"

"Well, say forty-five."

The old man turned white as death, lost his voice for a minute, and then hoarsely whispered—

"You can't have it. War's broke out somewheres, and that sugar is worth seventy-five."

WORTH OF WOMAN.

BY HIRAM TORREY.

[Dedicated to Mrs. Sarah E. Gardner, a member of the Society of Friends, noted for her generous deeds of Christain sympathy and philanthrophy.]

O lovely woman,
Is she but human?
Or, something better still?
O she's an angel,
Man's true evangel,
And something better still.

In her completeness,
And Heavenly sweetness,
All Christian virtues shine;
Patient, forbearing,
Never despairing—
Sustained by grace divine.

How sweetly tender
Her self-surrender
When duty makes demand;
With hope inspiring,
And strength untiring,
She works with heart and hand.

Through human feeling,
God's help revealing,
She smooths the brow of care;
The sick restoring,
By soul-implering,
Through holy faith and prayer.

O sacred woman,
Divine and human;
E'er since the world began,
She's been the angel,
The pure evangel,
And God's best gift to man.

THE WEDDING BELLS PEAL FORTH HAPPY MUSIC.

Three weddings occurred on Thursday. The details of the Meyer-McCalmont wedding have already been given. On the same day our friend, Mr. Bachnan, of Pennsylvania Furnace, was married to Miss Webster, at Mt. Pleasant, of which we have not yet received the particulars. The wedding which we shall tell our readers about is that of Mr. Harry McGirk to Miss Alice Dale which occurred at the bride's home in Lemont.

The groom is a young man whose father, Mr. William McGirk, formerly lived at Lemont, and who is now a citizen of Lewistown. His bride is the daughter of Mr. Henry Dale, a well known farmer. The event was a very pleasant affair. A company of about seventy persons assembled at Mr. Dale's residence, and at precisely 12 o'clock m the wedding party stood in front of Rev. A. N. Warner, the Lutheran minister at Pine Grove Mills, and the words were spoken which united them. Mr. Charles Dale was the groom's best man and Miss Mary Frye of Pine Grove, was the bride's maid of honor. The bride was attired in green silk and her maid in sateen of cream color. Both wore flowers. Of course, they bore themselves bravely and gracefully and were in all respects a model wedding party. The usual sumptuous and elegant wedding feast followed the ceremony.

The 4.30 train conveyed the bride and groom on their way rejoicing, followed by a shower of slippers, shoes, rice and other missiles which bring good luck. They went direct to the State Capital and from thence to Lewistown, where a reception was tendered them on Saturday at the home of the groom's father. They will locate in Altoona, where the groom is employed as a teacher.

Mr. McGirk is intelligent and capable. His bride is a farmer's daughter, well suited for the position of wife and companion, having acquired both useful and ornamental accomplishments. The presents were many, useful and beautiful, including a few articles in solid silver.

Of course, we unite with other friends in congratulations and good wishes.

IN the general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, met in session at St. Louis, steps have been leading to an ultimate union of the Northern and southern branches of the large Christian body. It is a consummation devoutly to be wished. Many of the causes of estrangement and separation are happily things of the past, and there ought to be no really great obstacles in the way of ultimate union. The northern assembly of the church is also now in session at Omaha, Neb. The tendency of the times is towards a more close union, not only of religious bodies of the same denomination, hitherto separated, but closer harmony and a better understanding among Christians of sect and name.

—At Loch Lomond, near Philipsburg, on Saturday, May 21, Mr. John F. Williams breathed his last. Deceased was born at Bellefonte, Centre county, Pa., in 1813, and had been a resident of this county ever since, up to the time of his death. His sufferings were very great, but he bore them nobly, and is now at rest. He leaves a kind mother, a loving wife, and five children, one daughter, Mrs. Gill, having gone before him, and twenty-eight grand-children, together with a large circle of friends to mourn his removal to his home on high. Thus, one by one the golden sheaves are gathered in.—Philipsburg Journal.

On the Great Battlefield.

GETTYSBURG, May 30.—The Grand Army procession formed at 2 p. m., marching to the National cemetery, where the children of the public schools formed semi-circles at the avenue at the base of the monument, the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans filling the avenues at the inner edge of the circling graves, whilst on the outside of the circle the avenues were packed with spectators. First came the impressive decoration services of the G. A. R., then the veterans and Sons of Veterans filed away to the right and left, opening a way for the children to advance, scattering flowers, until they reached the outer rim of graves, while the band played "Nearer My God to Thee." Special contributions of flags and flowers were furnished by the survivors of the Fourteenth Connecticut Regiment to decorate the graves of Connecticut's dead. The crowd, upon moving to the rostrum, was called to order by John M. Krauth, Esq., and after music and prayer Col A. Wilson Norris, Auditor General of Pennsylvania, delivered an oration. De Witt C. Sprague, of Washington, followed with a poem-history of the soldier killed at Gettysburg whose name was unknown, after which benediction was pronounced and the throng dispersed.

Barrels of "Crooked" Brandy.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 30.—The large seizure of illicit cider brandy made by United States Collector Alexander Troup on the premises of D. C. Beach, of Trumbull, last week, has been followed by other seizures of liquors belonging to the same man.

Owing to disclosures by Mrs. Beach, who has left her husband, Collector Troup and Deputy Marshal Frank Lovejoy, at New Haven, visited Trumbull again, and in two barrels of seed potatoes in the house of Mr. Beach they brought to light two packages of illicit brandy. About three hundred feet from the still is an old cemetery, overgrown with scrubs. Search among them brought to light a forty-two-gallon cask of brandy buried under a lot of dry brush. Visiting a large manure heap in a field one-quarter of a mile distant from the still they applied forks vigorously and unearthed two barrels of cider brandy. All these goods were seized by the Collector and placed in charge of the still.

The collector then quietly proceeded to search further. He tore up matting in a bedroom on the second floor of Beach's house, and found a trap door, connecting with a large apartment, expressly designed for the concealment of liquor. It was learned that this passage was made several years ago, and that it had done good service. In the pantry evidences were strong that the lath and plastering had been cut away to admit illicit brandy packages.

A Sad Suicide.

HARRISBURG, May 30.—"Major Elbridge McConkey, resident clerk of the house of representatives for several sessions, and who has been prominently identified with the state board of agriculture, committed suicide this morning."

The Harrisburg Telegraph of last evening says: "About six months ago Major Elbridge McConkey was prostrated by serious illness, and ever since then his friends have noticed that he was not as strong mentally as previous to his illness. He seemed to recognize this, too, and in conversation with a friend the other day he deplored his weak mental condition, and feared it would grow worse. He seemed in perfect physical health, tall, robust and muscular, and bade fair to live a long life.

A Ghastly Crime.

READING, May 31.—William Showers, a cigarmaker, aged 39, was arrested at Annville, Lebanon county, at midnight, charged with murdering his two grandchildren—William and Samuel, aged respectively 3 and 5 years.

A search was made for the children and resulted in the finding of their bodies buried in Showers' yard with ropes around their necks. Showers claims to have taken the children from their home to deliver them to a man at Tower City who was to adopt them and while on the way he missed the road and put the little ones out of the carriage while he went to water his horses, a quarter of a mile away; and while he was gone, the children disappeared in company with two strangers. He denies any knowledge of the bodies being in his yard. Showers was engaged to marry Elizabeth Large, but her one condition was that the children should first be got rid of by placing them in charge of some other person. Failing in this it is believed that he resorted to murder.

The coroner's jury rendered a verdict that Showers had murdered the boys. Showers has since confessed the crime.

Painting the Old City Red.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 31.—Owing to a discrepancy in the returns it was very late in the afternoon before the committee to make the official count of the election reported to the grand committee, and, owing to this, together with the fact that there was considerable time exhausted over the legislative balloting for lieutenant governor and secretary of state, it was after 6 o'clock before the proclamation was made from the state house balcony and the inauguration procession started. As a consequence many of the out-of-town organizations departed for home, so that the procession was materially shortened. There was plenty of enthusiasm, however, and to-night Newport is all red-fire and open houses. Governor John M. Davis, Attorney General Z. O. Slocum and General Treasurer John G. Perry were respectively declared elected by the people. The balloting on the two remaining offices, in which there was declared no election, resulted as follows: For lieutenant governor, Samuel R. Hovey had 58 votes and Lucius B. Darling 49. For secretary of state, E. D. McGinness had 55 and Joshua M. Andeman 51 votes.

Texas Train Robbers.

AUSTIN, May 31.—The six prisoners arrested on the charge of robbing the train at McNeil's station were arraigned yesterday. About fifty witnesses were present. In answer to the inquiry of the defence the prosecution intimated that they expected to put one of the accused on the stand as a State witness. The incidents of the robbery were established as heretofore related. The express agent testified that $2,600 in cash, and $2,800 in valuables, checks and drafts, were taken. None of the witnesses could identify any of the prisoners. Joe Barbour, who is held on circumstantial evidence of his name being found on a scrap of paper found where the "boodle" was divided, intimated that this paper might have been dropped by his brother, who is a fugitive from justice.

A Struggle in the Dark.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 30.—Constable Jacoby went to Mrs. Glenan's house late Saturday night to notify her that her suit for divorce would be called in court on Monday.

The husband, Glenan, had meanwhile escaped from jail, and, seeing the constable's team at the door, began stoning the house. Jacoby drew his pistol and fired at Glenan without effect and then grappled with him. A struggle for life began in the darkness and rain, which did not end until 3 o'clock in the morning, when both men fell exhausted about a mile from the house. Jacoby's skull is fractured and he will die. Glenan is badly used up, but will recover. One of Glenan's children was hit by a stone which he threw through the window and is dying.

Convention of Miners.

PITTSBURG, May 31.—Wm. H. Bailey, of the General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, and a number of delegates from the Eastern part of Pennsylvania left this morning for Cincinnati to attend the annual convention of the Miners' National Assembly, No. 135, Knights of Labor. It has sixty thousand members. Mr. Bailey will submit several recommendations, among them one making it compulsory, where matters are submitted to arbitration, that membership be forfeited if they refuse to abide by the decisions of the board they themselves have elected.

The Pope and the Knights.

LONDON, May 30.—Cardinal Gibbons sailed from Queenstown yesterday for New York. Before this departure he warmly thanked the local clergy for their kindness to him. He refused to be interviewed. The Cardinal said that his mission had been successful. The Pope had yielded much and regarded the Knights of Labor favorably.

Will Visit Luray.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The executive committee of the Pennsylvania editorial association met at the Girard house to-day. Senator T. V. Cooper presided and Colonel P. H. Thomas acted as secretary. It was decided this year to visit the Natural Bridge, in Virginia, starting from Harrisburg on Tuesday, June 21. The party will stop at Luray Cave. Between 200 and 300 will accompany the Pennsylvanians.

Briefs.

BERLIN, May 30.—The rheumatic trouble of Prince Bismarck is attracting even more attention than the malady of the Crown Prince. It is given out that his attack is not serious, but it is of sufficient violence to confine him to his house and to put him in a condition of mind not favorable to an amicable consideration of the cases of irritation constantly occuring on the borders of France and Germany.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 31.—The coke strikers made an attempt this morning to blow up the coal shaft at Davidson with dynamite, which was thrown down the shaft and exploded, without injuring the men, although a side of the shaft was damaged. The workmen quickly ran from the mine, when they were fired upon by four men. More than a dozen shots were fired, but none of them took effect.

POTTSVILLE, May 31.—Negotiations were concluded to-day between a syndicate of Pottsville capitalists and the Phoenix Manufacturing Company, of Paterson, for the establishment of a large silk mill here. The mill will employ from 600 to 1,000 men. The work of erection will be commenced at once.

KEATING SUMMIT, Pa., May 31.—A fire took place here to-day and destroyed 4,000,000 feet of lumber, owned by G. D. Brigg, of the United Lumber company, of Buffalo. Loss, about $35,000. All trains of the Buffalo, New York and Philadelphia railroad were delayed for hours, the flames reaching across the tracks.

HARRISBURG, May 31.—It has been discovered by Governor Beaver that the name of George Handy Smith, president of the senate, is not affixed to the general revenue act and that it therefore falls under the constitution. Many appropriations based upon the increased revenue will suffer in consequence.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The board of aldermen have appointed Miss Minnie R. Pollock, the well-known translator of law and type writer, as commissioner of deeds, her name being substituted for that of ex-Assemblyman Rocke.

HARRISBURG, May 31.—G. G. Messenger, associate judge of Elk county, has sent his resignation to Governor Beaver, having been appointed postmaster at Ridgway. The resignation has been accepted.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—A motion for a new trial in the case of William and Jacob S. Herst will be argued at the October term of the United States district court.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

The "Tally-ho" Arrives.

At 6 o'clock the handsome "tally-ho" coach, "Rambler," used by B. K. Jamison, of Philadelphia, for Summer travel, arrived with its precious human freight. Information of its approach had been received and we were looking for it. It is a large coach, dark in color and handsomely and completely equipped. When it entered town and was drawn by four horses down High street all of the coaching party were sitting on the outside of the vehicle and the only inside passenger whom we could notice was a fierce looking dog. Mr. Jamison was the driver and reined up in front of the Bush House. His daughter, Mrs. G. W. Holmes, who sat with him on the front seat, alighted easily from her lofty position and entered the hotel. The gentlemen of the party, including Messrs. B. K. Jamison, Sr., and his sons, B. K. Jamison, Jr., and W. S. Jamison, and Mr. Ryan and James M. Gamble, of Williamsport, tarried in front of the Bush House, being greeted by Hon. L. A. Mackey, of Lock Haven, and ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin.

Mr. Jamison, being so extensively interested in business in this vicinity, will probably tarry here several days.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, of White Deer, Union county, is the guest of Mary Woods, this week.

Rev. James D. Wilson, D. D., of New York city, will spend a few weeks vacation at his "old home" in this place. He will arrive the latter part of this week.

Mrs. Alexander is putting a new fence around her yard and ere long she expects to put a new roof on her house.

Prof. P. J. Auman started for Evansburg on Monday last where he intends to run a creamery. He received instructions from Cal. Mallory, who has been operating the creamery at this place.

A game of ball was played at this place on Monday between the Centre Hall boys and our own club. It resulted in favor of Centre Hall by a score of 29 to 9. The Spring Mills nine had not tossed a ball this Spring by way of practice, so that it is not surprising that they were beaten.

The Decoration exercises were a grand success. The G. A. R. passed from the Union cemetery through this place to Georges Valley, and were assisted by the K. G. E. of Spring Mills. The band also joined in the parade, rendering enjoyable music and showing great improvement. Profs. W. A. Krise and D. M. Wolf were the speakers on this occasion.

EGO.

—We referred very briefly on Tuesday to the wedding event which occurred in the Bush House at 2 o'clock that afternoon. It was quite a handsome affair and was witnessed by a company of about twenty persons who gathered for that purpose in the parlors of the hotel. The bride, Miss Alice A. Foote, who so soon afterwards became Mrs. George G. Heeter, is quite pretty and looked charming in a dress of soft, cream colored material. The groom seems to be a pleasing young gentleman and the contracting parties looked trustfully, confidently and hopefully into the future as they stood before Rev. Dr. Monroe, the officiating minister. Mr. Frank P. Bible, the brilliant wit of the Centre Democrat, added his presence to the affair, which made it all that anyone could desire. May the bride and groom and all the company enjoy a long and happy life.

—The Lock Haven Democrat says of Rev. Henry G. Dill, father of Hon. Andrew H. Dill, who died in Lewisburg on Monday and is to be buried to-morrow morning: "Mr. Dill was an old veteran in the pulpit of the Methodist church. He was licensed to preach in 1831, entered the Baltimore conference in 1843, and was in the active ministry 38 years. He retired and settled in Lewisburg in 1871, and had been for a long time superintendent of the public schools. His public spirit was great, and his death causes general regret. Hon. A. H. Dill, his son, is an ex-Senator, was once the Democratic candidate for Governor, and has just been appointed United States Marshal for the Eastern district of this state."

—A black walnut tree was lately sold in Michigan for $215, which was no doubt ten times as much as the land on which it stood was worth per acre. There is an ever increasing demand for the wood from cabinet makers, while the supply is decreasing at a rate that will soon make it among the scarcest of our cabinet woods. The walnut is an easily grown tree, makes a rapid growth, and, besides its value as a wood, produces a valuable nut for which there is quite a ready sale. There are many portions of Centre county where the walnut could be cultivated without encroaching on farming land and become a profitable thing to the farmers. Why not grow walnut timber in this county?

—Advance guards of the Salvation Army are lingering about Bellefonte, and the indications are that an invasion of the town is threatened. It is necessary for the citizens to organize on the defensive at once. Heretofore the eloquence of Mr. Frank P. Bible has kept them away, but they say that they are coming here regardless of the fact that a Democratic editor sports such a good name, and will make him their first conv—ahem!—victim.

—The editor of the Evening Independent of Altoona prepared its readers gently for the proper observance of Memorial day by launching upon them a lengthy address beginning at the age of Noah and extending to the end of the Rebellion.

The New Scalp Law.

The new scalp law repeals the act of assembly passed in 1885. Under the new law there will be no bounty allowed for the killing of foxes, minks, owls, hawks and weasels and reduces the premium on wolves. As approved by the Governor on May 13, the new law reads as follows:

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate, etc., that for the benefit of agriculture and the protection of game within this Commonwealth there is hereby established the following provisions for the destruction of certain noxious animals to be paid by the respective counties in which the same are slain, namely, for every wolf ten dollars and for every wild cat two dollars.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of every person having killed any animals mentioned in the first section of this act who is desirous of availing himself of the premiums therein provided, to produce such slain animals before any Magistrate, Alderman or Justice of the Peace of the county in which the same was killed, and make affidavit of the time and place of killing the same: Provided, That the pelt, if entire may be produced in lieu of such animal from the tip of the nose of any such animal when so preferred, and upon the reception of any such animal or pelt it shall be the duty of said officer in the presence of said person killing such animal and one elector of the county, to cut off the ears of such animal, and in the presence of said persons, burn the same.

SEC. 3. Upon the destruction of such ears the said officer shall give to the person producing such animal or pelt, a certificate of compliance with the provisions of this act, directed to the Commissioners of the county in which such animal was slain, which certificate shall contain the following facts: The kind of animal, and when, where and by whom killed, and the date by whom and in the presence of what elector the ears of such animal was destroyed, and upon the production of such certificate the said commissioners shall give an order upon the county treasurer for the payment of the premium or premiums provided by this act, and it shall be the further duty of the said officer taking the affidavit provided for in the second section of this act, to file the same forth with, or cause the same to be filed in the office of the commissioners of the county and upon filing the same, the said officer shall receive for the county stock the sum of 25 cents in full compensation for all his services under this act.

SEC. 4 If any person shall willfully and fraudulently collect any premium or premiums, provided in this act, or shall aid, abet or assist in any official capacity or otherwise in the same, he, she or they shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof they shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not exceeding $500 and undergo an imprisonment in the county jail of the proper county, not exceeding one year, both or either, at the discretion of the Court.

SEC. 5. The Act of Assembly entitled "An act for the destruction of wolves, wildcats, foxes, minks, hawks, weasels and owls in this Commonwealth," approved the 23d of June, A. D., 1885, and all other acts inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed. Approved May 13, 1887.

—Engineer S. A. Short and Fireman J. T. Maxley were descending the mountain on an empty engine, No. 151, Sunday afternoon near Altoona, when it run over and instantly killed an unknown man. It was about half-past 2 o'clock, when, approaching Munday's farm, east of Allegrippus, that they noticed a man walking on the track directly in front of the engine. The engineer sounded the whistle repeatedly, and, noticing that the walker had no intention of leaving the track, he put on the air and tried to stop, but it was too late. He was knocked down and flattened on the rails. Engineer Short went back and found that the stranger had been instantly killed. He has not been identified.

The "Mucks" Got There.

BELLEFONTE, June 1, 1887.

MR. EDITOR: I see by your issue of the 30th of May you have the score of the game of base ball between the Muckamullions and the Black Diamonds reported in favor of the latter. The score was: Mucks 29, Black Diamonds 14. The Mucks claim the championship of Bellefonte until they are beaten. They are willing to play anything in the county at any time or place, and will play either for money or fun. Put up, Bellefonte clubs, or shut up.

The other improvements and changes in progress in the interior of the mill, which will give it the most modern and improved roller system of manufacturing flour, are well under way.

—Clarence, a 10-year old son of Mrs. Washington Dunn, of Lock Haven, met with a distressing accident on Monday. He climbed up behind a buggy and in some way thrust his leg through the spokes of one of the rear wheels. The limb was so much mangled that it was amputated and the child is now in a critical condition.

—The liquor cases from Huntingdon county were arged in the Supreme Court in Philadelphia on Wednesday. The question hinges upon whether the associate judges have the power to overrule the president judge. No decision was arrived at. The case of Adam Zeigler was postponed on account of illness of Mr. Speer, his attorney.

The Kentucky Plan in Politics.

Chicago Tribune.

The President—Dan, is it a fact that Gen. Buckner, of Kentucky, promised his wife she should be the mistress of the Governar's mansion in that State for the next term.

Dan—The story appears to be well authenticated.

The President—And that the Democracy of Kentucky nominated him for the Governorship in order that he shouldn't break his word with his young wife?

Dan—That is the impression that everywhere prevails.

[Exit the President in the direction of Mrs. Cleveland's room, with a look of firm resolve on his face.]

In a Villain's Grasp.

Miss Daisy, says the New York Sun, is the fair, fastidious daughter of an important citizen. The amenities of the highest society have hedged her about since she was a child. An education of the strictest kind and an atmosphere of exclusiveness have brought her to a pitch of propriety and decorum that is beautiful to contemplate. Complication forced her to go alone to a store in Union Square. She left her carriage as near the curb as possible, and took the necessary steps to reach the safety of the door with maidenly timidity. This hazardous expedition was undertaken at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Beguiled by the variety and beauty of new goods, she took no note of the time till she took her leave. Behold, 'twas six o'clock. The streets were dusky, and the stupid coachman had mistaken her directions to wait. The very fashionable maiden was alone in the treacherous bustle of New York life However, reasoning that lovely young girls who work in shops go safely to their homes at that hour, Miss Daisy buttoned her fashionable ulster with a high resolve and both hands, and concluded to board a street car that would leave her within half a block of her home. Now, the ulster had two large pockets at the sides. The collar was turned up about the throat, and our young lady lifted her chin from the recesses long enough to hail a car and climb aboard. One side was crowded, and the other very nearly so, with home-returning people. Some of them moved up, and condensing herself into the slimmest sort of dimensions, she slunk in between two gentlemen. She jammed both hands into her side pockets and contemplated the straw in the vehicle. Of a sudden she felt the hand next a robustly built gentleman gently taken hold of and reassuringly pressed. Miss Daisy knew she was going to faint. A man's hand in her pocket! She drew back as far as her close quarters admitted and pulled. A caressing retainer was the only answer. Every drop of blue blood in the decorous veins of Miss Daisy froze at the horror of her position. For three blocks she struggled to release her hand from the grasp of that villain. There was a lull in the rattle of the car as some one stopped it to disembark. She turned an appealing glance at her tormentor, and in a weak whisper besought him to unhand her. The gentleman looked down at her with a smile.

"For Heaven's sake, sir," she gasped, "you take your hand out my pocket."

"Why, my dear young lady, take your hand out of my pocket," returned he.

Miss Daisy, aghast with horror, took a despairing survey of the situation. Sure enough, when she sat down and thrust her hand into a pocket, that of her neighbor was in such close proximity and so invitingly open that she had plunged deep into the garment of the stranger, who had accepted the advance as a new lark.

How to Get Rich.

Live up to your engagements.

Earn money before you spend it.

Never play at any game of chance.

Drink no kind of intoxicating liquor.

Good character is above all things else

Keep your own secrets, if you have any.

Never borrow, if you can possibly avoid it.

Always speak the truth. Make few promises.

Keep good company or none. Never be idle.

Do not marry until you are able to support a wife.

Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy.

Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income.

When you speak to a person look him in the face.

Make no haste to be rich, if you would prosper.

Save when you are young to spend when you are old.

Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it.

Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous.

Never run into debt, unless you see plainly a way to get out again.

Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind.

Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue.

Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts.

If any one speaks evil of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.

When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day.

If your hands cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind.

A camel may squeeze through a needle, a rich man may steal into heaven, but a Senator cannot get into the White House.

What the Fingers Testify.

White hands with rosy palms, so beloved by our grandmothers, have gone out of fashion.

The American hand is smaller than the English hand, but the nails are not as handsome.

It is said that people with imagination are apt to have long, taper fingers and beautiful finger nails.

The good natured critics are said to possess small, well-shaped nails, and their handwriting is somewhat angular.

The American nail suffers from the dryness of our climate, as a foreign picture painted on panel suffers from the same cause.

Diplomacy has a long, supple hand and beautifully kept finger nail. The handwriting of a diplomatist looks like a snake crawling away.

An aptitude for criticism is shown among people who bite their nails. These people are cynical and severe, uncharitable and bitter; they write a small, cramped, illegible hand.

The Chinese have finger nails so long that they could write with them. The tenacity of the Chinese nail, which does not easily break, would indicate that they have more lime in their bones than we have.

The English nails are almost universally rosy and shell-like, and cut to a rounded, slightly tapering point kept always scrupulously clean. The skin at the base is pushed back to show the little onyx, a little white half moon.

The onyx of the finger nail is carefully cultivated and polished by the Creoles of New Orleans to show that they have no black blood in their veins. No matter how fair the complexion, the valuable sign of pure blood is wanting to the octoroon if the onyx is clouded.

Mrs. Edwin Steeens, of New York, has $15,000,000.

Mrs. Hetty Green, of New York, is worth about $40,000,000.

Mrs. Robert Goelet, worth $3,000,000, owes her fortune to hardware.

Mrs. Jayne, the widow of the patent medicine man, is worth $3,000,000.

Mrs. Marshall Roberts is the eight millionaire widow of a mining king.

Mrs. Martin Bates was left $1,500,000, which her husband made in dry goods.

Mrs. Joseph Harrison, the widow of the man who built the first railroad in Russia, $4,000,000,

Mrs. Jane Brown received from her husband's estate about $4,000,000, which was accumulated in banking.

Mrs. Josephine M. Ayer, who gets her money from patent medicine, is estimated to be worth $4,000,000 or $5,000,000.

Origin of a Famous Song.

Once over the bar at its entrance from the gulf the Suwanee river holds its way with a deep current, in places of forty feet, far up through the forests of the best hard pine in the State. It is the Penobscot of Florida. It has some good land upon it where plantations have heretofore been made, but after awhile generally abandoned. The mosquitoes and malaria guard in the main entrance against other than lumbermen, anglers and instrusive tourists. This dark river has, too, its romance, as being the place which gave rise to a melody which, like "Home, Sweet Home," the affection of the heart will never let go. For it was here that a French family in the time of Louis XIV came over and settled upon the Suwanee and made a plantation. After a while the father and mother and all died save one daughter, who, disheartened and desolate, returned to France, and there wrote, adopting in part that negro dialect which she had been familiar with on the plantation in her girlhood, a feeling tribute to "the old folks at home" in their graves in the far-off country. —Augusta (Ga.,) Chronicle.

It Brought Him Back.

"Henry!" shouted a Duluth avenue woman to her husband as he started down town, "aren't you going to get me that water before you go?"

"Not this morning—in an awful hurry—big day's work to do," and he tore along down to the gate.

"But I want you to fix the cellar door so the children wont fall down and break their necks."

"Oh, watch 'em, watch 'em. I have no time, must be down to the office in five minutes."

"Did you see the scandal in this morning's paper?"

"Hey?" he replied as he paused at the corner.

"It's about Colonel Bilk and some woman from Sioux City."

"Is that so? Well, I must read it," and he came back taking long steps, "I've rather been expecting something of the sort for quite a while."

Freaks of Memory.

Boston Herald.

Miss Addison, daughter of the celebrated Addison, seemed to inherit her father's memory without his sound power of understanding, She could repeat any part of her father's works, in fact the whole of many, but could not speak or write an intelligent sentence of her own. She was a perfect imbecile. The power of calculation entirely from memory is surprising. The famous mathematician Wallis could extract the cube root from a sum of thirty figures in bed and in the dark. It is said George III. never forgot a face once seen or a name he had once heard. Carolan had a quick and retentive memory. On one occasion he met a celebrated musician at the house of an Irish nobleman and urged him to a trial of musical skill. The musician played the fifth concerto of Viraldi on his violin. Carolan had never heard it and listened with deep attention, and when it was finished, took his harp and played the same concerto from beginning to end, not missing a note. Cases of forgetfulness on matters of interest are on record.

When Dr. Priestly was preparing his work entitled "Harmony of the Gospels," he had taken great pains to inform himself on a subject which had been under discussion, relating to the Jewish passover. He wrote out the result of his researches and laid the paper away. His attention and time being taken with something else, some little time elapsed before the subject occured to his mind again. Then the same time and pains were given the subject that had been given the subject before, and they were again put upon paper and laid aside. So completely had he forgotten that he had copied the same paragraphs and reflections before, that it was only when he found the papers on which he had transcribed them that it was called to his recollection. Many times he had read his own published writings and had not recognized them.

All Sorts.

"Grass widow" is a misleading term. Such widows are never green.

"No, I am not a taxpayer," a citizen said this morning; "I am a victim of grand larceny."

Thompson—"Suppose a man should call you a liar, what should you do?" Jones (hesitatingly)—"What sized man."

All seasons are his own for the deaf and dumb man to get on the railroad track when an express train is approaching.

The first baby born in South Sioux City, Neb., was given a serenade by the band and presented with a corner lot in that promising town.

A Haverstraw man who believed there was "good luck" in having a bird come in a house chased a canary bird in, and in doing so upset and broke a $10 looking glass.

A veteran was relating his exploits to a crowd of boys, and mentioned having been in five engagements. "That's nothing!" broke in a little shaver. "My sister Sarah's been engaged eleven times."

Some inconsistent people declare they would rather be right than President. However, since they think it is wrong that they are not President, and would only consider it was right if they were, how are they going to make the distinction?

Flooring a Senator.

Laurence Oliphant.

Senator Toombs was a large, pompous man, with a tendency, not uncommon among American politicians, to orate rather than converse in society. He waited for a pause in the discussion, and then, addressing Lord Elgin in stentorian tones, remarked apropos of the engrossing topic.

"Yes, my lord, we are about to relume the torch of liberty upon the altar of liberty."

Upon which our hostess, with a winning smile, and with the most silvery accents imaginable, said:

"Oh, I am so glad to hear you say that again, senator, for I told my husband that you had made use of exactly the same expression to me yesterday, and he said you would not have talked such nonsense to anybody but a woman."

The shouts of laughter which greeted this sally abashed even the worthy senator, which was the more gratifying to those present as to do so was an achievement not easily accomplished.

A Mistake that She Remembered.

Boston Young lady.—I want to look at a pair of eyeglasses, sir, of extra magnifying power.

Dealer.—Yes, ma'am, something very strong?

Boston young lady.—Yes, sir. While visiting in the country last summer I made a very painful blunder, which I never want to repeat.

Dealer.—May I ask what that—er—blunder was?

Boston young lady.—Oh, yes, I mistook a bumblebee for a blackberry.

2213 Hope St., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 12, 1886. Mr. T. S. Page, 41 West 31st St., New York City:

Dear Sir:—It is now one year since I wrote you your medicine had cured me of deafness. I am satisfied the cure in my case is permanent, but waited this length of time to fully test it. My deafness was one of many years, with no apparent cause, and for the past six or eight years I was completely deaf. During all that time the various noises in my ears were enough to craze me. The change at first was slow, but the noise gradually ceased. During the fourth month I began to hear sounds that I had not heard for years, and thereafter a continual increase of hearing from week to week, until I could hear ordinary tone of conversation. At the end of six months I considered I was completely cured. Can now hear as well as any one of my friends. I need not tell you how delighted I am, and it is with the deepest gratitude I now write you of this fact. I most earnestly wish I could make you known to all persons afflicted with deafness. Wherever I do see one I tell them of you, the good you can do, and have done for me. I send you this statement with permission to publish it, if by so doing it can be the means of doing good to others who may be so unfortunate.

Respectfully, Mrs. M. Tournay.

Clear the Way

Without loss of time, when the intestinal canal is blocked up by reason of constipation, chronic or temporary. It should be borne in mind that this ailment is prone to become lasting and obstinate, and breed other and worse complaints. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to remove the obstruction effectually, but without drenching or weakening the blockaded bowels, a consequence always to be apprehended from the use of violent laxatives, which are among the most pernicious of the cheap nostrums swallowed bp the credulous and misinformed. The fiat of experience, and of the medical fraternity, sanctions the claims of this standard aperient. Not only as a source of relief and permanent regularity to the bowels, liver and stomach, but as a means of remedying and preventing kidney and bladder troubles, and fever and ague, it is without a peer.

A Fact Worth Knowing.

A physician in Genesee Co., N. Y., who has used Gilmore's Aromatic Wine in his practice, for several years, recently wrote to the proprietors as follows:—"I do not think you give sufficient publicity to the value of your Aromatic Wine in all cases of dysentery, cholera morbus and summer complaints generally. I have for three seasons past used it in many severe cases of the above, and it has never failed to afford speedy and gratifying relief." No proprietary remedy has ever received such general endorsement from regular physicians of high standing as Gilmore's Aromatic Wine.

For cleansing and healing foul and indolent Ulcers, Sores and Abscesses and removing the bad odors arising therefrom, and for sloughing, contused and lacerated wounds, Darbys Prophylactic Fluid is unequalled.

Grapes for Weakly and Sickly Persons

Many persons who are weak and sickly are at a loss to know what will restore their health. Speer's Port Wine and Unfermented Grape Juice are the best restoratives known. It is especially recommended for its purity, exquisite flavor, and healthy properties. Medical men certify to its valuable medical powers and blood making property. Mr. Speer has been for years engaged in preparing and perfecting this wine, and it requires a four year's process before it is fit for market.—N. Y. Baptist. Sold by druggists.

Opera House Burned.

PARIS, May 25.—The Opera Comique was burned to-night. Fourteen persons who jumped from the windows are dead and forty-three were injured. It is probable that many were crushed to death in the galleries, but at present this is uncertain. The fire broke out during the first act of the opera "Mignon." One of the wings caught fire from a gas jet and the entire stage was immediately enveloped in flames. The fire soon spread to the whole house. Madame Merguillier and M. M. Tasquin and Bernard were on the state when the fire broke out. All the actors ran out in their stage costumes. The audience could have got out easily enough but the gas was turned off before all had left the building, and it is feared that some were left in the upper tiers. With the exception of Madame Sellier, who perished in the flames, all the actors escaped, although several of the supernumeraries were injured.

Five bodies, terribly burned, were conveyed to the National Library. Among them was the body of a woman claspiug a little boy in her arms. Nineteen persons are now known to be dead. Many of these were supers. An artificial fire apparatus which had been placed in position in readiness for the burning of the palace in the second act rolled down from its place near the roof and exploded below. Women, half clad and carrying their costumes, fled from the stage screaming. The supers and members of the chorus were terrified, and some of the latter fled with nothing on but their tights. The flames spread with such rapidity that in fifteen minutes the stage was a vast furnace. Several actors escaped by climbing to the roof, where they were rescued by fire escapes.

M. Tasquin implored the audience to remain seated until the exits were opened, which they did. If they had made a rush for the doors, the loss of life would have been terrible. The scene outside was one of wildest excitement. It is still unknown how many persons were unable to escape from the doomed building. Only a fortnight ago M. Steenackers called attention in the chamber of deputies to the dangerous condition of the Opera Comique, which was the oldest theatre in the city.

In Favor Presbyterian Union.

ST. LOUIS, May 25 —The following is an epitome of the speech made yesterday afternoon in the Southern Presbyterian assembly by Colonel Livingstone, of Georgia, in which he not only spoke in favor of the majority on the union of the two assemblies, but handled Dr. Smoot with bare knuckles. He said:

When the majority made the report it was out of no disrespect for the fathers of the church, like Dr. Smoot. The speaker admitted he had represented his people in the legislature at home, but he was not talking as a politician. He was not a politician. Dr. Smoot's speech was made up of bloody shirt and an attack upon the Methodist board. He characterized Dr. Smoot as a natural-born politician in the pulpit of Christ. He said that Dr. Smoot had been mad ever since the federal army came into his county in Kentucky, and they made him step up every thirty days and take the oath. They couldn't trust him more than thirty days. Ever since that time he has no use for anything north of Mason and Dixon's line. Dr. Smoot said he wouldn't go if the others went. The speaker suggested rather quaintly that they'd "let him stay."

He wanted to know if there was any politics in his predecessor's address concerning Wendell Phillips and Lloyd Garrison. He wondered if a northern man ever used language more cutting to southern people than that was to northern people. Smoot was different from Garrison. Garrison would say to Smoot: "Your rebellion caused all the sorrow and ruin." Smoot would say: "Well, you led us to do it." The war was over, and its issues should be buried forever and forever. As to co-operation, the speaker declared that Abraham armed his servants and went down and helped Lot and released him and his family. They didn't co-operate any more because the town was burnt up and Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of salt. Men were supporting the majority who were born farther down into the heart of slavery and the war than ever Dr. Smoot was.

Bills Become Laws.

HARRISBURG, May 25.—Gov. Beaver today signed the following acts, among them the inter-municipal bill, which has excited so much discussion:

Defining the liability of steam boiler insurance companies.

To relieve full paid capital stock from liability to another assessment.

Authorizing the formation of associations for the prevention of cruelty to children and aged persons.

An act dividing the cities of this state into seven classes, etc., known as the inter-municipal bill.

Authorizing cities to condemn property rights inside and out of their limits for the purpose of obtaining and supplying water.

To provide for licensing and taxing foreign dealers in merchandise and their agents in the several cities and boroughs of the commonwealth.

To enable road commissioners and other officers having in charge the opening, construction and repairing of public roads, highways and bridges to purchase necessary and improved implements, material, etc., and to provide means therefor.

Many Dead.

PARIS, May 26.—The bodies of the ballet dancers who lost their lives by the burning of the opera comique last night are lying in heaps in the ruins of the theatre. The firemen assert that many bodies are lying in the upper galleries. The number of persons killed greatly exceeds the previous estimates. An excited crowd surrounded the ruins, which are guarded by a military cordon. Many distressing scenes are witnessed. The police authorities state that so far as learned seventeen persons lost their lives in last night's fire at the Opera Comique, and 110 were burned and otherwise wounded. It is impossible as yet to search the ruins, but when this is done it is feared that the death list will be augmented considerably. One man from the fourth gallery says that he escaped only by walking over the corpses. Further inquiries show that the survivors throw the blame of the calamity upon the gasman, but this cannot be decided.

LATER.—The work of searching for the bodies was continued all day and resumed to-night and a number more were exhumed. The official statement says that fifty bodies have already been uncovered. M. Revhillon, deputy, speaking in the chamber of deputies this afternoon, estimated that at least two hundred persons lost their lives in the fire.

To-day 156 missing persons have been inquired for by relatives. They are supposed to have perished in the flames. The bottom of the theatre is flooded with water to a depth of five feet. Sixty bodies have been found floating in the water by the firemen.

A High-toned Executioner.

LONDON, May 26.—England's lord high executioner, more generally known as the public hangman, has a grievance which he is forcing on the attention of the secretary of state for home affairs, and he has gone so far as to threaten to strike unless prompt attention is given to his case.

Under the old regulations in force at Newgate prison, "Jack Ketch," as the hangman has been nicknamed for a couple of centuries, received a salary of $5 per week in addition to a fee of $50 per each execution at which he officiated. Since the passage of the pensions act however, the hangman's perquisites in the shape of permanent retainers have been abolished, and there is now no authority which has any control over him, although there is a general understanding that he has a monopoly of the business of ushering condemned criminals into the great beyond.

But the executioner had conceived the idea that this position should be officially recognized by the home office, and he has made formal demand that the name "John Berry" be placed upon the list of the civil servants of the crown. When it is remembered that this list includes some hundreds of earls and dukes, cabinet ministers and ex-cabinet ministers, a poet laureate and other distinguished people too numerous to mention, the shock which the audacious demand has created in aristocratic society can be understood.

Berry, however, is in earnest, and as there are half a dozen murderers to be hung in different parts of the country during the next six weeks, and nobody to hang them unless Berry is placated, the officials of the home office are in a quandary. Berry says that he isn't after the money so much as a chance to see his name in the civil list, but it is thought he will be willing to compromise and forego the desire of seeing his red book for an extra pound per week.

Great Fire in New York.

NEW YORK, May 27.—About 1.30 o'clock a. m. fire broke out in the Belt Line stables, on Tenth avenue, between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth streets. They were in flames so quickly that there was no chance to save the books of the company. In the stables there were over 1,600 horses and several hundred cars. Only ten horses and two cars were saved. At 2 o'clock the walls of the building fell in with a crash, sending millions of sparks and blazing pieces of wood high in the air.

At 1.45 a. m., the flames aided by a strong high wind which was prevailing, had leaped across the wide avenue and communicated to the whole block on the east side between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth streets. The block was composed of six-story tenement houses and a coal-yard. The terror-stricken tenants poured out of the building like a swarm of bees, praying, fighting, cursing by turns. The scene of terror was indescribable. The buildings burned rapidly, though the fronts facing the avenue were of brown stone. By 2.30 they were completely gutted. The flames spread to the entire square block over to Ninth avenue.

The fire was got under control at 4 o'clock this morning. The stables, with their contents, and the frame houses on the opposite side of Tenth avenue and down Fifty-fourth street were destroyed, The loss will not be much less than $1,000,000. Elizabeth Walch aged 76 years one of the occupants of the house No. 540 West Fifty-fourth street, which was burned, was sick in her bed. The police rescued her and brought her to the sidewalk. where she expired from the fright and shock.

Later estimates show that the losses by the fire will not be covered by a million dollars. The stables are a complete wreck and the tenements on the street facing the stables are also burned. There were 1,400 horses in the stables, 150 of which were saved. The old woman who died from fright is believed to be the only victim.

The loss is now estimated at $1,325,000. The fire raged from 1.30 o'clock till daybreak. The sun rose upon a scene of desolation, but with the tired firemen masters of the situation. The bodies of 1,200 horses were roasting in the ruins of the stables. More than one hundred families, mostly poor people, had been prostrated by the heat. Men, women, and children wandered all night aimlessly over the ruin of their wrecked homes, bereft of their all and bewildered at the sudden and crushing blow. The insurance will be less than $500,000. The street car company carried $318,000.

Briefs.

CLEVELAND, O., May 25.—Early this morning twenty tramps boarded a freight train on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad near Kent, Ohio, and helped themselves liberally to fruit and provisions, with which the cars were loaded. At Kent the engineer ran the train on a siding and the local police officers captured seven of the tramps. The others took to their heels. Later on the remainder of the party attacked and overpowered the crew of the coal train at Kent. They climbed into a box car and were locked up by the conductor. Just before reaching Akron the tramps kicked the door open and jumped from the train while at full speed. A large party of citizens are searching the woods for the miscreants.

QUEBEC, May 27.—A compound tragedy, in the shape of a murder and suicide, has caused a profound sensation in the parish of St. Nicholas, fifteen miles from this city. Francis Lagace, 38 years old, a rich farmer, recently died and was buried without suspicion of foul play having been aroused. Later, however, a chain of circumstances led to the disinterment of the body in consequence of suspicions of poisoning against the widow of Legrace. Her supposed accomplice, one Eleanor Morin, on learning that justice was likely to overtake him, drowned himself in a well on his own property last night. His body was found at 6 o'clock by his wife on going to draw water. Mrs. Lagrace, the wife of the poisoned man, has been placed under arrest pending the two inquests.

HARRISONBURG, Va., May 27.—Harrison, republican, defeats Yancey, independent democrat, for commonwealth's attorney; Messerly, independent democrat, defeats Lewis, republican nominee for county clerk of the court; Martz, independent, democrat, defeats Black, republican nominee for circuit clerk. THE WEDDING RING.

AS A CIRCLE OF GOLD IT SYMBOLIZES A HAPPY NUPTIAL EVENT.

Fondly vowing, fondly suing,
Let me love, nor love in vain;
Fate shall never fond hearts sever,
Hearts still bound by true love's chain.
Allan.

No! let the eagle change his plume
The leaf its hue, the flower its bloom;
But ties around these hearts once spun,
They cannot, will not, be undone.
Campbell.

On Thursday evening J. Calvin Meyer, Esq., and Miss Lizzie L. McCalmont, of this place, were married. The Presbyterian church was the scene of the beautiful ceremony. The commodious edifice was comfortably filled with the friends of the happy couple, some of the ladies in beautiful evening toilets.

The floral decorations were exceedingly beautiful. Immediately in front of the pulpit arose a graceful arch of flowers, the prevailing hue of which was pink. From the centre was suspended a marriage bell of white flowers. Beneath this and around the pulpit steps was a mass of green potted plants, rare, choice and beautiful.

Mr. Geo. W. Pooler, of Greensburg, Pa., who is a brilliant musician, manipulated the organ, and the wedding march pealed forth from it in notes more than usually inspiring. Precisely at half-past 7 o'clock the wedding party moved up the centre aisle where Rev. William Laurie, D. D., awaited their approach. The six ushers, two by two, preceded the bride and groom in the following order: Charles Richards and George Johnston, W. S. Singer, Esq., and D. Bates Bell, James Hamill and Chas. Hewes, Esqs.

The bride's dress was of a rich dark material, her attire being a traveling costume. The groom wore a perfect fitting black suit. Both the contracting parties appeared as natural as if engaging in the most ordinary undertaking. Perfect composure and satisfaction marked their movements, but that the importance of the vows assumed was fully appreciated was evident by the firm and expressive "I do" which the groom answered to the important question put to him.

Rev. Laurie's remarks in regard to the symbolism of the ring were exceedingly well chosen. Another wedding march was played as the party left the church, thus the organist gave them the benefit not only of Mendelshon but also of Wagner's "Lohengrin."

From the church the wedding party and a few friends proceeded to the home of the bride's parents. There a delightful supper was served, congratulations received and the time spent most pleasantly until the evening train which took Mr. and Mrs. Meyer on a tour of the Eastern cities.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. McCalmont of this place. She is of about the average height; has refined, pleasing manners and numerous accomplishments, music being one of them. Her demeanor has ever been modest. But such rare flowers cannot bloom unseen. This one was found by a young gentleman deserving the best wife in the world and we believe he has secured a rare treasure. The groom is the son of Hon. J. G. Meyer, of Aaronsburg, this county, who with his wife was present to witness the ceremony. He is a young man of rare talent and bright prospects. A close student, eloquent and impressive, he will rise to eminence in his chosen profession. He is now serving as district attorney with special ability.

The bride and groom have the hearty congratulations and best wishes of a large community. May the future have in store for them much sunshine; may their lives be useful and happy.

A Reception in Milesburg.

On Thursday afternoon from eighty to one hundred young ladies and gentlemen assembled at the hospitable and elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Miles in Milesburg, to welcome home Mr. Oscar Miles and his bride, who were returning from their wedding tour. Among the company were Rev. W. O. Wright, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and his wife, and Rev. Mr. Bouse, pastor of the Methodist church, also accompanied by his wife, Mr. J. W. Weaver and Miss Clara Whitehill, who were the best man and the maid of honor, respectively, at the wedding, went to the depot to meet the bride and groom. The train bringing the wedding party arrived at 5 o'clock and they were driven to the house.

Rev. Mr. Wright, who officiated at the wedding ceremony, formally introduced the bride and groom to the assembled company, and then followed the congratulations to the happy couple.

Soon afterwards the company adjourned to the spacious store room, where two long tables were bountifully laden with refreshments of the choicest description. The supper was thoroughly enjoyed by the large company present.

The evening was spent in the most enjoyable manner. Conversation, music, rambles through the fine grounds, which were fitted up with comfortable seats and inviting hammocks, and other diversions occupied the time. The pleasure lasted until a reasonable hour when the very large company separated. Practical and enjoyable proof of the excellence of supper was given us next morning in the shape of a box of very fine cake. All parties are to be congratulated on the perfect success which marked the event. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Miles enter upon wedded life under the most pleasing and promising conditions.

—The Bellefonte Nail and Iron Company, Lim., since its first existence, has experienced most gratifying success, and we are pleased to learn that it is now enjoying a higher degree of prosperity than ever before and is manufacturing a larger quantity of nails daily than at any previous time. The acceptance by Mr. L. T. Munson of the superintendency was the signal for a new impetus to be given it and it is now running full handed in all its departments. The factory is being run an additional hour every day and the daily production is 500 kegs of nails, with even a greater quantity of pig metal, consuming more than 50 tons of nail plate. Orders for nails are received from all parts of the world. Among them is one for Portland, Oregon, which will be shipped by water; another received on Monday was from Mexico and Friday's mail brought and order for 1,000 kegs of nails to go to Valparaiso, South America. We should not be surprised if additions must be built to the plant soon.

—Mr. George S. Chase, who used to manage the steam heating works in this place, is now superintendent of the steam heating department of the New York Steam Company. His address is 763 Fifth avenue between 58th and 59th streets, N. Y. Mr. Chase's experience in this business has been varied and extensive. Among many other buildings in the Metropolis which he has fitted with steam heat apparatus are those of the Vanderbilt estate, including the Stewart Memorial Cathedral, the Episcopal church, private offices, Garden City hotel, private residence and post-office.

—Information from Altoona informs us that Miss Clara Albert, who was in the railroad wreck on Friday evening, is now suffering considerably from the injuries and the shock. Miss Haupt, of this place, whom she was visiting, will go to Altoona this afternoon to remain with her during Sunday.

NATURAL GAS.

IT SHOULD BE BROUGHT TO THE SURFACE IN THIS VICINITY—ITS MANY ADVANTAGES.

In several parts of the State the communities are forging ahead of Bellefonte in their enterprising efforts to bring natural gas to the surface and in almost every instance their efforts met with success. Natural gas may be found in any part of this State. The principal theory maintained regarding its origin is doubtless correct, but it has been proven that no law can be deducted from this theory as to where the gas exists or does not exist. Experience proves that it is omnia-present, as it has been found in greatest quantity where least expected. Hence, why not bore for it in Bellefonte? Here is a subject for the gentlemen who intend to resurrect the Board of Trade to devote themselves to at once.

Over in Clearfield, which has none of the modern improvements for which Bellefonte is famous, they have organized to search for the gas. In Philipsburg a similar effort has been made with successful results. The people of Centre Hall have discussed the subject and Milesburg is forging ahead in the organization of a company. Yes, Milesburg, which is sometimes the subject of remarks by Bellefonters not at all complimentary to the former town's go-aheadativeness, is leading us in this enterprise, and ere we know it the gas will be gushing forth there, attracting business of all kinds in that direction. In view of the apparent dilatoriness and lethergy of our capitalists, we bid our Milesburg friends success.

The following is the result of the investigations into Mother Earth made in Milesburg, showing the kinds of strata encountered at the respective depths mentioned:

24 feet deep		slate
30 "	"	sandstone slate
32 "	"	6-in sandstone
34 "	"	sand and grindstone grit
204 "	"	crevice
355 "	"	sand and oil
416 "	"	oil and sand rock

After boring a few feet further the water suddenly disappeared. These borings were made years ago and at the time occasioned much excitement, but the work was not continued. In view of the recent discoveries throughout Pennsylvania this memoranda is appropriate and offers an encouraging suggestion to our capitalists. We must have natural gas. It is the great element of success in this age. Its discovery here would greatly accelerate all enterprises. Organize at once and bring it to the surface.

Then it will supply us with heat, light, power, and will be worth as much as all the other natural advantages of this vicinity.

—Don't be frightened with the idea that the boiler works, to be carried on in the building near the railroad, by Mr. Maitland, of Williamsport, will be too noisy. It is true that boiler works do cause noise enough to wake the dead, but, bless us, fellow citizens, noise is what we want, and if we are dead of course we must be waked up. Some people imagine that because the REPUBLICAN has not made extended notice of the works, that therefore we do not approve of it. Don't place such a construction on our silence—we forgot it, that is all. We are in favor of constant noise if it tells of the increased business of our town. We hope Mr. Maitland will push forward the works as rapidly as possible. Let the whistles scream, the boiler works organ play and let people know that Bellefonte is progressing. Only, do not let the boiler burst.

—A notable event in the newspaper history of Central Pennsylvania occurred on Thursday. It was the enlargement and fresh adornment of that excellent daily paper, the Morning Tribune, of Altoona. If possible, the Tribune now looks handsomer than ever, though to accomplish such a result was well nigh impossible, because the Tribune, ever since we knew it, has been one of the handsomest dailies received at this office. Again, it was difficult for us to concieve how it could be impreved as we always considered it a model of excellence. But the increased size was necessary because of its large advertising patronage and the new dress is an evidence of the prosperity which it so eminently deserves. Congratulations, friend Tribune; may you flourish to a greater extent than ever before and continue to bring the freshest news to our sanctum.

—Morris Cowdrick and his sons display about as much energy in the way they pile up bricks wherever they work as one is wont to see any place. They have been at work only three weeks on the Garman Hotel structure and expect to have the brick work all finished in eight more working days. Then they will begin on Mr. Crider's new store building and as soon as that is finished they will go out on the avenue to erect the twelve brick dwelling houses for Messrs. Spangler and Gephart.

Forest Fires Extinguished

The fine rains have had the effect of extinguishing the forest fires which raged so generally throughout the eastern part of Pennsylvania. The air is now clear, pure and free from smoke.

The destruction in the vicinity of Houtzdale was not near so great as was apprehended. By the time the Philipsburg, Tyrone and Altoona fire companies reached the scene of the fire it was under control. Instead of about thirty homes of miners being destroyed, only a few were burned. Everybody in that vicinity worked bravely to subdue the flames, and thus great destruction was averted.

There will likely be more periods of drought this summer and care should be taken not to start fire in the woods. Forests are becoming yearly a scarcer article in Pennsylvania and it is computed that all the trees set out on Arbor day will equal in number those that were consumed by the forest fires. Frequenters of the woods should be careful.

Telephone Topics.

A NEW AND IMPROVED SERVICE BETWEEN PHILIPSBURG AND BELLEFONTE.

The Central Pennsylvania Telephone and Supply Company consider carefully the interests of their patrons and have made arrangements to offer the people of this community the most efficient service. With this aim in view the company will build a new line from Bellefonte to Philipsburg, via Julian Furnace and the Beaver Mills. Work upon the new line will begin at once and it is to be completed within sixty days. The length of the new line will be about thirty miles and it will decrease the distance about 26 miles. Connection is now made at Tyrone, often occasioning vexations but unavoidable delays. When the new line is built a very quick and satisfactory service will be given. Hard drawn copper wire will be used on the line, which is superior to the iron wire in the proportion 6 or 7 to 1.

This improvement will have the effect of still further increasing the patronage of the telephone in Bellefonte, which is already the champion town in the State in that respect in proportion to its population. It will increase the efficiency of the service all the way to Lock Haven, as connection from that place is also made via. Tyrone. Mr. Wilmer Malin, the competent superintendent, has engineered this movement to a successful result, and deserves the thanks of all connected with the service in this vicinity.

Terrible Accident on the Rail.

Special to the DAILY NEWS.

TYRONE, May 28, 9 a. m.

A very distressing accident occurred on Friday night about 8.30 o'clock, at Kittanning Point about five miles west of Altoona. The accident was caused by a broken axle, three of the coaches of the fast line leaving the track. Six persons were killed and seven slightly injured.

The name of the killed are as follows.

J. D Graham, of Allegheny City. He was instantly killed.

Weimer Snyder, of Shamokin, Pa., also instantly killed. He is believed to be a member of the P. O. S. of A.

John Dorris, of East Liberty, Pa. He died one half hour after being rescued from the wreck.

James H. Stauffer, of Lewisville, Ohio.

Frank McCune, of No. 75, Thirty-eight street, New York City. He travels for Newinger Cracker Works of Philadelphia. He did not die until after he was conveyed to Altoona.

Chas. Beidleman, of Wilbur county, Indiana. He is quite an old gentleman and died after being taken to Altoona.

The following persons were injured:

George Pagel, night ticket agent at Union station, Columbus, Ohio. Slightly hurt.

A. Agen, of Fayetteville, N. Y. Cut slightly and right side injured.

Miss Clara Albert, of Flint, Michigan.

Miss Hattie Luckett (colored) of Alexandria, Va.

Rev. R. H. Porter, of Second Baptist church, Detroit, Michigan.

Edith Guise, 11 years of age of Chicago, slightly bruised.

Mrs. Guise, her mother, cut by timbers.

In the Wreck.

Among the passengers on the ill-fated train which was wrecked at Kittanning Point, on Friday night, was a lady who had been a guest at the home of Mr. Isaac Haupt in this place since last fall. She is Miss Clara Albert, of Flint, Mich., and she was on her way from this place to Canton, Ohio, having left here on Friday at 5 o'clock p. m. The Tribune says that the slightly injured were taken to the Logan House in Altoona. That paper describes Miss Flint's injuries as a "contused wound of the wrist and a lacerated wound of the left eye." The Tribune, in speaking of the train, says it was composed of two engines, an express car, baggage car, four passenger coaches, a parlor car and two sleepers, and left the station on time, at ten minutes after 8 o'clock, and was in charge of Conductor Hawkins. Coming eastward was a coal train, and just as the two trains met at a point about three quarters of a mile east of Kittanning Point the axle of coal car No. 59,245 broke, and leaving the track, the car crashed into the third coach, which was No. 405. The coal car entered the coach about the centre and crushed the entire side out, and in a diagonal line entered the front part of the fourth coach, No. 68. It is thought that all the passengers except one have been accounted for. This man was seen on the train but we could only obtain meagre description, in fact nothing more than he wore a light hat. It is supposed that he had been caught under the wreck and buried in the ruins.

BLOOMINGTON, ILLS., Sept. 18, 1882.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co, Toledo, O.: Have taken Hall's Catarrh Cure. Had catarrh all my life; am 48 years old Had asthma 19 years, and a dreadful cough for five years. Have taken everything; went to the Hot Springs; I have doctored with the doctors here; I have done nothing but take medicine for 19 years. When I commenced using Hall's Catarrh Cure I was almost dead. I sent for the doctor the day I got Hall's Catarrh Cure, and I told him that I would try your medicine. I was very sad. How I suffered for 9 years! I could hardly breathe at times. I saw Hall's Catarrh Cure advertised in the papers and commenced taking it. I would have been under the ground to-day if it had not been for that. I have not had one bad spell of coughing since. In breathing my head feels well and I am well. It has done me a thousand dollars worth of good. There are ten of my friends, on seeing what it had done for me, taking it, and it is helping them I only wish that every one who has catarrh, asthma and a bad cough could see me, so that I could tell them all to take it. All that know me here know how I have suffered. (I have been here since 1858,) and say to me that "I am so glad you found something that could cure you." Everyone says, "How much better you look." The doctors say they are glad I found Hall's Catarrh Cure as they could not cure me.

I cannot express my gratitude to you for the good Hall's Catarrh Cure has done me. You can use as much of this letter as will do the afflicted good. Publish it to the whole world—it is all true and they should know it.

JOSEPHINE CHRISMAN,

—There is no one in Centre county better prepared than Clement Dale, Esq., to write and read an essay on "Farming in Centre County," which he has consented to do before the State Board of Agriculture at its coming meeting in this place. It is true that Mr. Dale is not now personally engaged in agriculture, but nearly all his relatives are and he was reared on the farm. He will be able to combine the most advanced and scholarly thoughts on the subject with actual experience and modern knowledge.

—Messrs. A. J. Cruse and H. Sechler, went trout fishing in Spring Creek on Thursday. John Anderson aided them all he could by throwing stones in the water to chase the fish toward them, but it seems that the inability of the fishers—and probably the fishes—to see the fly that was sporting over the water, interfered with their success in catching any. However, the experience furnished them as much pleasure as if they had captured a dozen.

MEMORIAL ECHOES.

How Gregg Post and the Citizens of Bellefonte and Vicinity Remembered the Heroic Dead.

Monday was almost faultless in its beauty. During the morning almost all the business places in town were open, but at 12 o'clock they closed and during the afternoon the town wore a genuine holiday air, the streets being filled with merry, well-dressed people.

Flowers had been brought to Gregg Post room plentifully during the morning and skilled and willing fingers formed them into bouquets, attaching them to a wire framework which when covered with the floral offerings formed a large and beautiful tent-like structure. This was carried in the procession on a wagon drawn by two horses and formed a unique and beautiful decoration.

The parade organized at 2:30 o'clock in Diamond Square. First came a detachment of Company B with Gregg Post. The Sons of Veterans formed near the National Bank. The Logan Hose Company with the Zion band next moved into line.

The parade started at 3 o'clock in the following order:

Carriage containing orator of the day, Governor Curtin, Jas. H. Rankin, and E. C. Humes.
Wagon with tent of flowers.
Pleasant Gap Band.
Detachment of Company B.
Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R.
Camp Breeze, S. of V.
Zion Cornet Band.
Logan Hose Company, No. 1.
"Montecola" wagon containing little girls.

The parade was very beautiful and occasioned favorable comment. After wheeling into platoons and moving north along Allegheny street the parade countermarched to the Diamond, and moved around the square of which High, Spring, Bishop and Allegheny form the boundary. Returning to Howard street, the parade moved slowly into the cemetery and formed a hollow square around four graves in the extreme northeast part of the enclosure.

The scene presented was picturesque and beautiful, embracing an extended stretch of rooling green surface with brightly verdured mountains in the background—a scene to inspire an artist's pencil or a poet's verse.

The commander's address was followed by a dirge and ode, the latter by a male quartette—C. E. Schaeffer, A. Lukenbach, S. A. Stover and Charles Shuey. Their voices harmonized very sweetly. The title of the ode is "There is rest in the shade of the trees."

The prayer was offered by Post Chaplain Woodcock which was followed by a dirge and ode, "The Fallen Brave." The four special graves were decorated—the first by Comrade Lambert, of Post 2, Philadelphia; 2d, by Past Commander John Noll; 3d, by Past Adjutant J. H. Rankin; 4th, by Post Chaplain R. C. Irvin. The ritual of the order was used with impressive effect.

The bouquets were detached from the wire frame and given to the children who placed them in the hands of the members of the Post. Then all the graves—more than 150—were decorated. At the sound of the bugle call the lines reformed, a dirge was rendered, and three salutes were fired in honor of the dead. The report of the score of rifles was simultaneous.

The parade marched down Howard to Spring, thence to High and then to Post room, where it separated. The ceremonies of the afternoon were signally successful, making an exceedingly pleasant and gratifying event in the history of Gregg Post.

The Meeting in the Court House.

It was a pleasure on Monday evening to have Comrade Lambert, of Philadelphia, with us. He is a gentlemanly, bright-faced man, sunshine, joy and intelligence expressed in his face. An excellent audience gathered in the Court House in the evening to hear him. The choir sat in the jury box and the Post marched in and took seats on the opposite side.

"God save our Union" was the first selection rendered by the excellent choir. When D. S. Keller, Esq., introduced Comrade Lambert he said that he was a member of the 15th Pa. Cavalry to which many Centre county men belonged, and was also on the military staff of Gov. Geary.

The speaker read from manuscript, though not closely. His enunciation is clear and distinct, is manner graceful and pleasant. His address was well prepared, thoughtful and beautiful. His first theme was the condition of the country just before the conflict. Differences of opinion existed which were dissipated immediately on the firing of the first gun on Sumter. Then the citizens sprang to protect and preserve a common country, party name being forgotten. By the providence of God a new issue—freedom of the slaves—was introduced into the final settlement of the question. Often our armies entered the valley of humiliation to be raised again to heights of promise. The results meant not only the achievement of the results fought for, but the triumph of the North for all time; the safety and permanency of a free government. Such a result was purchased at infinite sacrifice. Predictions at home and abroad were, that where there was dismemberment of the country, force of arms could not restore it. We have seen the groundlessness of such a theory, for the Republic was founded on a rock. It has endured transition of government only recently without evil results. Men are confident that no change can undo the past. For such a government citizens may be proud to bleed and die.

The address was brief. After it was concluded ex-Gov. Curtin was called for. He replied in his usual happy and eloquent vein, rather turning the joke on Judge Furst when the latter asked him a question.

Mr. James Milliken, being alluded to as one of the original members and founders of the Union League, of Philadelphia, that gentleman related the facts connected with the origin of the famous club. It grew out of the necessity of society in Philadelphia to have an organization, the membership of which they could safely trust and confer with in those trying times.

This association of gentlemen formed a club to meet at private houses once a week, which was known as the Union Club. This club so increased in numbers as to give rise to the necessity for a home of their own where they could meet, and thus came about the formation of the Union League from which sprang all the Union Leagues of the United States. He related how he was ambitious at the outbreak of the Rebellion to enlist in the service and he wrote Governor Curtin on the subject. The Governor wrote back that there were as many men in the hospital as they needed.

He stated that to a committee of the club, of which he is one of the only two survivors, the people of the city of Philadelphia gave $800,000 to use as they desired in the support of the government and the enlistment of troops; that the bounties of thirteen regiments were paid with it.

Mr. Milliken's peroration was very eloquent. He said that Collins, in his ode, had uttered the sentiment that we all could feel.

"How sleep the brave who sink to rest
By all their country's wishes blest."

What a death to die is this—By all your country's wishes blest. And what a life to live—By all your country's wishes blest. And this day you survivors of those who were in actual conflict have added to the glory of the dead, and heightened your own fame, by your affectionate regard at their graves.

The meeting adjourned with the rendering of an appropriate selection of music and the Benediction, which was pronounced by Rev. James P. Hughes.

—On the occasion of a recent visit to Loveville we were placed under many obligations to Mr. John Wilson, of that place, for so kindly conveying us from and to the railroad. Mr. Wilson is one of the most successful farmers of Halfmoon valley and having lived at that place most all his life his knowledge of the surrounding country and everything pertaining thereto is unlimited, and only excelled by his kindness and hospitality. On his farm can be seen fields—containing many acres—of clover that is the best in that section; his fields of wheat are broad and at this time of the season the wheat takes a man about the waist. Mr. Wilson has about him not only all the modern farming implements and machinery, but he has a saw mill on his farm with which he manufactures his own lumber, and also a mill for chopping feed for his stock.

—The Presbyterians of this place did not receive the benefit of the usual religious worship in their church last Sunday. Their own pastor, Rev. Dr. Laurie, went to Harrisburg, to exchange with Rev. Dr. Chambers. We suppose Dr. Laurie reached Harrisburg all right, but unfortunately Dr. Chambers got on the wrong train and instead of reaching Bellefonte he was carried to some other place, so a notice was hastily placed at the entrances, "No service in this church to-day." We are sorry Dr. Chambers got on the wrong train. He should stay on the Presbyterian train for that will carry him right through.

—Sunday last was Whitsun Day, or Pentecost. The sermons in many of the churches were especially on the subject of the Third Person of the Trinity. One thought introduced by Rev. W. O. Davis, into his evening sermon, was very beautiful and suggestive. He spake of the brooding of the Spirit, at creation, over the chaotic mass which constituted this world, clothing it with life and loveliness. So, he said, does the Spirit now brood over the human soul, which naturally is a chaotic mass, and the result is to clothe it too with enduring beauty.

—The locust trees which have this year produced a luxuriant growth of blossoms are now shedding the same. According to an old legend connected with the locust tree this ought to be a good year for corn. The old saying is that the trees full of locust blossom insure a full yield of corn. The season thus far for corn has been most favorable and the outlook for the fulfilment of the legend is excellent.

Many Thanks.

Mr. William Jones, who attended to the financial affairs connected with the Memorial exercises, desires us to return thanks on behalf of the Post for the liberal and willing assistance given. We believe that the amount contributed was sufficient to pay all expenses.

A New Railroad.

The Nittany Valley Line and where it will Extend.

The Nittany Valley Railroad Company is a corporation composed entirely of Philadelphia capital. B. K. Jamison, the Philadelphia banker, three other members of his banking company and two clerks in his banking house constitute the members of the corporation. The line which they will build will be conducted entirely independent of any of the other railroad lines, or mining or manufacturing organizations hereabouts. It will extend from Zion seven miles to a point on the Lemont railroad touching Barnhart's, Humes' and Gov. Beaver's farms and traversing a country rich in ore mining possibilities and now being largely developed, especially by the new Ore Mining and Washing Company. The above route is the one decided upon, though we have heard the opinion expressed that a route through Armor's gap to connect with the Bald Eagle Valley railroad would be more advantageous all around.

But arrangements have gone so far that even the rates of shipment with Valentines Ore Land Association and other mining companies have been made. Consequently, the line will be built very speedily.

The Memorial Sermon.

The exercises incident to Memorial day in this place really began on Sunday morning, when Gregg Post, G. A. R., accompanied by members of the Sons of Veterans, went in uniform, in a body, to the Reformed church, to listen to a sermon addressed especially to them. The handsome church was thronged with an interested congregation. As part of the morning lesson, Rev. W. H. H. Snyder, the pastor, read the 4th chapter of Joshua, which describes the memorial set up by the Hebrews of their safe passage over Jordan.

His text was Isaiah 26:12.

Lord, thou wilt ordain peace for us; for thou also hast wrought all our works in us.

The them of his sermon was the patriotism of peace. The language of the prophetic utterance, he showed, is one of trustful confidence—"Thou wilt," not "wilt Thou." He proceeded to show the fulfillment of the prophesy in the history of our own country. To peace we owe the growth and development of this Nation. When the first settlers came here it was not to found an empire, but to escape from persecution. Here their aims were realized—but they found giants in the land. These were giants of forests, giants of rocks, etc. These they overcome, converting forests into fields of waving grain, making the wilderness to blossom as the rose.

In words of great beauty the speaker described the Revolutionary war. The result seemed to hang in an uncertain balance, and when the defeat of Borgoyne at Saratoga was sent by Washington to the Continental congress the members repaired to a German church in the city and gave thanks to God. After that more stars were added to the azure blue, as beautiful as those which spangle the heavens. The Nation had nurtured an idol, which God would have had them cast out by peaceful means, but war was necessary. Here was another scene of conflict, and throughout all of it the cry went up "Lord thou wilt ordain peace for us!" The flag, stained and battered, but entire, waved again over all the Nation.

Then followed important instruction not only to the soldier, but to all citizens in regard to the duties of a true patriot. The pulpit is not a teacher of politics, but it is our duty as Christians to take part in all the affairs of citizenship and the pulpit must teach how to do that. One of the duties of the Christian conqueror is to forgive the conquered. Our patriotism is sublime if we can convert the enemy into a friend by our fraternal actions toward him. It is the duty of every citizen to pray and vote and vote as he prays. He who prays and does not vote is a bad citizen and a questionable Christian. He who votes and does not pray is no Christian. The press and public sentiment are crying out against corruption in politics. This is well, but not enough. It is folly to cast out one and substitute with another equally corrupt. We boast of being a Nation of sovereigns, but if the sovereigns are bad the Nation will be the same. The true remedy and the only remedy is to plant the truths of Christianity in the heart, and it will work out the peaceable fruits of righteousness.

In beauty of language and wealth of thought we have never heard this sermon excelled. After the benediction the congregation remained standing until the soldiers had passed out.

—The members of the Woman's Guild of the Episcopal church request us to inform the public that the net receipts of their fair, last week, over and above all expenses, reached the handsome figure of $300. This is exceedingly good, considering that the fair lasted only during two evenings. We have not asked the ladies the exact purpose to which this sum will be devoted, but we understand that it will be the nucleus of a fund for a new Sunday-school building.

—McGovern Bros., of Tyrone, have closed a contract with Attlesberger & Reidenbaugh, of Altoona, to put up the brick work of 150 coke ovens at Snow Shoe and at Amesbury, the latter being on the Cresson and Coalport road.

John T. Johnston departed Tuesday afternoon for Harrisburg where he has been appointed to an important position in the office of Secretary of Internal Affairs. We are exceedingly glad to know of Mr. Johnston's appointment, as no more efficient gentleman either in his political work or in his business ability lives in this State. Of course, we shall be very sorry to lose Mr. Johnston as a citizen.

Well Cared For.

Miss Clara Albert, of Flint, Mich., who made her home in this place all of last Winter and this Spring until last Friday afternoon, was, as we have already informed the readers of this paper, a sufferer by the railroad wreck at Kittanning Point on Friday evening. Mr. Isaac Haupt, who has been with her in Altoona, reports that the young lady was even more severely injured than was at first reported, but she is doing well and is cheerful. She is still at the Logan House, Altoona, receiving the kindest treatment and will remain there about two weeks longer. One other sufferer by the accident is also in the hotel, the others, who were worse injured, being at the hospital.

The escape of Miss Albert from instant death seems marvelous. She was in the car in which six persons were killed, and many severely injured. Miss Albert escaped with slighter injuries than any other person who occupied such an exposed position. She was in a seat near the centre of the car, on the side through which the freight car came crashing. The freight car also had a forward movement. She was admiring the beauties of the scenery from the car window at that point, as well as it could be looked at in the waning light. Her ticket was in her lap. She heard a crash, and after that all was blank until she recovered consciousness some time on Sunday to find herself in a room at the Logan House, surrounded by friends and medical attendance. The window of the car had struck her in the face, near the left eye, badly injuring the face above and below the eye, but fortunately not hurting that organ. Her mouth was also cut so that she is unable to talk except with difficulty. It is easy to imagine that had the window struck her an inch or two nearer the right eye the result might have been terrible. Her wrist and arm are also very badly cut.

The wounds are, however, healing quite rapidly and she is well pleased with the kindness of the Railroad Company and with the attention she is receiving at the Logan House. The three doctors who attend her say they will send her home in three weeks entirely recovered from her injuries. All the patients are receiving like kind treatment, and seem to be satisfied with the efforts of the Railroad Company to make amends for the unfortunate accident which happened on its line. It is very seldom that such an event is reported any place on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Of Interest to Farmers.

The fact that the State Board of Agriculture will hold its meeting not only here but also at State College will enable even a larger number of the farmers to attend, and not one in the county should miss it. On Wednesday, the 8th, the meeting will begin at 9 o'clock a. m. in the Court House. All who will read the complete and excellent programme already printed in this paper must see that it includes a discussion and intelligent treatment of subjects of vital interest to farmers. For instance, Prof. John Hamilton will surely have much of great importance to say about "Tenant Farming in Centre County," a subject which we have very often heard spoken of. The Professor will doubtless be followed by other members of the Board in a comparison of individual experiences on this subject. Now, it is a grave question with many whether tenant farming can be made profitable. Here the farmers can have the best experience in the State on the question and can certainly learn much. The subject will be the first order of the afternoon in the Court House on Wednesday, the 8th. We might refer to other topics to be discussed but ask all those who are interested to read the programme for themselves and select whatever portion of the exercises will most especially interest them.

We suggest, too, that persons who desire information on any important subject relating to agriculture come prepared to ask for such information. It might be a good plan to write your question out at once and come prepared to submit it, then in the multitude of other subjects you will not forget what may be of prime consequence to you. Make the occasion as profitable and interesting as possible.

—The Coronet hook and ladder company now numbers 36 members. It is probable that the membership will be increased to fifty at the next meeting on Thursday evening. The constitution which has been adopted, does not limit the membership, but of course it is not desirable to make it too large. It is now necessary to procure uniforms and it will of course take a handsome sum of money to realize sufficient for the purpose. Perhaps $500 will do it, although that will be only $10 per uniform. The borough authorities cannot afford to donate that much money. We suggest that the lady friends of the members take the matter in hand and raise the money. The young ladies can do anything if they devote their charms, talents and energes to its accomplishment.
